Office Building For State OKd

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

After 18 years of haggling, the controversial State Office Building will soon be a reality. It was learned Friday that Gov. J. James Exon signed LB447, which provides for construction of a $20-million office building on a site bounded by 14th and 15th Sts. and L and M Sts.

An Exon aide also reported the State Building Commission Monday will set a meeting date to adopt a timetable for construction.

The structure will basically follow plans developed by architects three years ago when the building was first scheduled for construction. However, the growth of state government over the past few years dictates that alterations must be made to meet the increased needs.

The old plans would have 827,000 of the space inside the building functional, but Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter has said those plans will be modified so that 80% of the space can be utilized.

State agencies are currently scattered about Lincoln at 32 different locations — most of it rented from private property owners. State Department of Administrative Services (DAS) figures indicate the state is paying $647,659 annually to rent that space. Only a year ago $490,896 was spent on outside rental.

And it appears those figures will continue to rise as growth prompts more agencies to move outside the Capitol.

Backers of the office building have long pointed to the confusion that results when people come to Lincoln for a day of business and find that their business cannot be completed under one roof.

Inflation costs also played a factor in the decision to move on a State Office Building this year. In 1965, the price tag was in the neighborhood of $3.5 million, by 1970 that figure had risen to $12.7 million. State Office Building proponents argued that the sooner it is constructed the more money will be saved. They contended it is a matter of 6% inflation versus roughly 4% interest on bonds.

As recently as the beginning of the 1973 legislative session, Gov. J. James Exon reaffirmed his opposition to the construction of a State Office Building with state sales and income tax revenue.

Outflanking Tried
However, proponents led by Lincoln Sen. Roland Luedtke tried to outflank Exon by introducing LB447 to create a new State Building Commission to build the structure without gubernatorial approval.

However, a compromise financing scheme was agreed upon by both Exon and legislative leaders at a March 12 meeting of the Public Works Committee.

Financing would be provided by the City of Lincoln, which would issue bonds to cover construction costs. The city would then be repaid by the state with funds from the five-cent per pack hike in the cigarette tax enacted by the 1971 Legislature to construct the University of Nebraska's new fieldhouse.

Under the terms of the compromise, office building construction costs could not exceed $20 million.

Carpenter has predicted that construction of the building could begin this year.

Gas Squeeze Begins

Large Firms Holding Back

...On Deliveries

NEW YORK (AP) — Several large oil companies have started allocating gasoline or trimming deliveries because of shortages in crude oil.

And a number of independent service stations around the country are closing down or operating on curtailed schedules because demand for auto fuel is outstripping the supply.

"We're in the worst shape that we've ever been in," said the manager of an Arizona service station chain that is running out of gas.

Mobil Oil Corp., one of the nation's Big Three oil producers, announced Friday it was adopting an allocation plan that will limit distributors to the same amount of gasoline they purchased in 1972 although overall demand has risen 7 per cent.

Texaco Inc., the country's biggest gasoline marketer, has been establishing a similar quota system with distributors as their contracts come up for renewal. Lion Oil Co. has also established an allocation system for Arkansas distributors.

Cities Service Co., among the top 15 oil suppliers, has found the situation so tight it is advising distributors they will be getting only 90 per cent of their estimated 1973 gas requirements.

Mobil took the step "reluctantly" in the face of increasingly heavy demand for all petroleum products, it said, and could not forecast when the allocation system might end.

The industry's supply problem is essentially the result of a limited amount of crude oil and limited number of refineries, industry sources say.

Heavy strains were put on oil supplies over the winter and the record number of new cars on the road — all equipped with gas-devouring anti-pollution devices — has aggravated the situation.

With the motoring season approaching its traditional summer peak, some officials fear the situation will get worse before it gets better.

But the acting head of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, Darrell M. Trent, said Friday he doesn't believe gasoline rationing will be needed this year despite the possibility of shortages.

And the American Automobile Association assured motorists they shouldn't shelve their summer vacation plans because of fear about lack of gas. "They might just have to make a few extra stops before they find a service station that's open," said an AAA official.

Independent service stations have been hardest hit by the shortage. They generally buy on a spot basis rather than on contract, the way dealers selling major brands do, and are the first customers to be dropped when oil companies run into a supply crunch.

Gibbs Oil Co., the largest independent fuel supplier in the Northeast, has closed its East Providence, R.I., terminal because of the gas shortage. The terminal, which supplied gas to about 100 service stations in the state, had been without fresh supplies for a week.

In other developments in the East, New Hampshire officials reported state and local government authorities were having trouble buying gasoline for the coming year. The state purchasing officer said the deadline for bids passed a week ago without any offers being made by oil companies for state contracts. The same thing happened in West Virginia.

Bus service in New Orleans may be curtailed soon because of the fuel crisis, according to transportation executives. The city's bus fuel reserves have dwindled from the normal one-week supply to a two-day reserve.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. started rationing gasoline sales at 11 south Florida outlets this week and is limiting customers to maximum purchases of 10 gallons each. Sears said it had asked its supplier, the Marathon Oil Co. of Findlay, Ohio, for additional gasoline but was told no more was available.

"We've considered rationing but aren't doing it yet," said Herb Timms, co-owner of a Tucson, Ariz., service station chain, Gas-a-Tron, that has had its supply cut by 15 per cent since the start of the year. "But it may get to that eventually."

Joe Moneskey, owner of the Fair Price Oil chain in Akron, Ohio, said he had to shut down one of his nine stations for three days in late February because he ran out of gas "and couldn't get any more until the first of the month."

Three independent stations in the Morris, Ill., area, 75 miles southwest of Chicago, have cut back their hours because their supplies were halved to 20,000 gallons a month. One station pumps only 750 gallons a day and then closes, while the other two close at 6 p.m. now instead of 10 p.m.

Jury Finds Crookman Innocent

HARTINGTON, Neb. (AP)—A Cedar County District Court jury Friday returned a not guilty verdict after two days of deliberation in the first degree murder trial of Richard Crookman, 32, of Coleridge.

Crookman had been charged with the Aug. 30 shooting death of his wife Judy at a locker plant owned by the couple in Coleridge.

A deputy U.S. marshal emerges from his armored personnel carrier at federal outpost south of occupied Wounded Knee, S.D. The marshals who man the post have erected a makeshift house out of bales of hay. The negotiations

Rain Causing Wet Basements

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Damages to basements may be worse than flood damage this year, according to officials of the University of Nebraska Conservation and Survey Division.

"If you consider the mental anguish of the housewife and the damage to the floors, walls, and basement contents, it could easily have a greater cost to the home owner than floods have had," said Vern Souder, hydrologist with the division.

"We have had calls from David City, Norfolk, Omaha, Lincoln and from a lot of farms in eastern Nebraska," said Vince Dreeszen, director of the division.

John Elder, a soil scientist, has prepared a report on how such problems can be prevented in new construction or cured in an existing home.

"The ranch type of home is a big problem. The basement is placed full depth into the ground. To make matters worse, we are now using the basement as a living place instead of a place for the furnace and washing machine as we used to," he said.

Lincoln has had 9 inches of rain since Oct. 1 that it doesn't ordinarily get, according to Elder, which is one of the reasons so many homes have a problem.

Estimates of how serious the situation is vary from one area to another. Perhaps as many as 40% of the older homes and 70% of the ranch style homes have a problem this year.

Prevention before the home is built is much cheaper than attempting a cure after the home is constructed.

"I think you can install a reasonably good system of drainage tile for $500 before a basement is put in, but it can cost as much as $5,000 to cure an existing problem," Dreeszen estimated.

"Basements must be designed for people, not furnaces. Building codes need to be updated with on-site investigations of building sites prior to construction," said Elder.

Prevention Possible

Elder suggests these prevention methods for new construction: "Select a good, well-drained site for your home, put tile drains in a gravel bed outside of the foundation and run it into a dry well or gravity drain," he suggested.

"Backfill around the basement must be tamped and there must be adequate surface drainage away from the foundation, plus good gutters with properly-placed downspouts to carry roof runoff away," he said.

Curing a problem is a more involved procedure. Suggestions include having the soil at least 6 inches higher at the foundation wall than at a point 5 feet from the foundation.

The upper edge of the window well should be slightly above ground level.

Flower beds with borders can hold water against the foundation. You may have to choose between a flower bed against the foundation and a wet basement wall.

Downspouts should extend five feet away from the foundation. It may be necessary to rebuild sidewalks and driveways that tilt toward the house.

Roof gutters on the house are a must with proper drains away from the house.

Bad Trench
Other possible sources of water in the house are from an improperly filled trench for water, sewer and underground wiring.

Solutions often including sump pumps, trenches with a tile in them some distance from the house and coating a wall with leak preventer.

"A cement block wall does leak quite well in its natural state, but coating walls can lead to a new problem. It will cause pressure to build up beneath the floor and crack it or cause it to heave."

"Each leak is a separate problem and every house is a separate case history. Try to locate the source of the problem and understand the conditions contributing to it and you might be able to solve it," Elder said.

Most Think Lid Not Meaningful

By The Associated Press

Many housewives, as well as farmers, cattlemen, packers and retailers, said Friday that meat prices already were too high for President Nixon's calling on them to be meaningful. The price control apparently had little effect on a planned nationwide consumer boycott of meat next week.

Many of those who criticized the ceiling believed it might lead to even higher meat prices by discouraging producers from increasing production. And others said that meat had become the target for what really was a problem of widespread inflation.

"The damned prices are too high at the point they're frozen," said Priscilla Draska, pushing a meatless shopping cart through a Chicago supermarket.

"Unless he's going to roll back meat prices to two months ago, I can't see that it will be of any help to anybody," Mrs. Helen Nelson, of River Forest, Ill., said.

The president of the American Farm Bureau Federation called the ceiling not "right, fair or acceptable."

"Any appreciable drop in farm prices on meat will surely lessen the incentive for farmers and ranchers to increase production," said William J. Kuhfuss, head of the two-million member group.

"Less production means more people and money bidding for a smaller supply, resulting in higher prices, not lower prices."

Farm Bureau directors from Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and North Dakota called the ceiling "unwise and unnecessary."

"If ceilings do affect meat prices over any extended period the result will be shortages and black markets," they said in a joint statement.

Swift Co. packers, said "actions which disrupt the normal production, marketing and distribution patterns in the meat industry, such as the imposition of price controls, tend in the long run to increase costs."

The company statement said what is needed is greater livestock production to meet a growing consumer demand for meat.

New Mexico Cattle Growers Association president Alvin Stockton said the ceiling "won't work and won't mean much" because prices likely have peaked and will level off.

He added that cattlemen believe "the pressure for the ceiling probably came from labor, in the threat of demands for higher wages." It was an opinion expressed by numerous others.

Only a few persons responding to a survey were uncritical of the ceiling. Among them was Ed Johnson of the Ohio Cattlemen's Association. He said Ohio cattle producers are "feeling pretty good" about the ceiling, adding:

"They're saying it would have been a whole lot worse if (Nixon) had put the price ceiling at the farm. They feel, I think, that where the ceiling was placed that they can go ahead and market cattle at a price where they can still realize a decent profit."

Joseph B. Danzansky, president of Giant Food Inc., said he thinks Nixon's move is calculated to prevent another upward swing in prices, but added "It won't end inflation."

New UNL Student President Wants More Interest In ASUN

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The new president of the student body at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln says she hopes attention to the matters which directly affect the campus will boost interest in the student organization.

She is Ann Henry, a junior pre-medicine major who earlier this month was elected the first female president of the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska (ASUN).

Miss Henry, a Lincolnite, carried the banner for the GOYA party, which swept the election with 21 victories in 35 student senate races and two of the three executive spots.

In an interview, she said she hopes the spirit behind her party's name (GOYA stands for "get off your apathy") will work its way into the thinking of students during the next year.

Effectiveness

"We want to make enough

Today's Chuckle

A father is a person who forks over a thousand dollars for his daughter's wedding and then reads in the paper that he gave her away.

things happen so that enough students say, 'ASUN is doing that,' the new president said.

"We'd love to see 5,000 to 6,000 students vote in the next election," she said, adding that the 2,400 to 2,500 turnout this year represented only about 12% of the student body.

"As far I know," she said, "that's the worst percentage ever."

It was a meager showing, she said, that capped an energetic campaign by the two major parties.

Still, she said, the "campus has been really quiet for almost two years," and without attention-getting issues it's as hard to generate interest in campus elections as it is in governmental elections generally.

Voice, Change
Miss Henry said her administration will direct its attention to the task of providing a student voice in the affairs of the university and to pushing for change which can have a direct effect on student lives.

For example, she said, students are investigating the possibility of hiring a full-time lawyer to spend half his time as an ASUN staff member and half giving students legal advice.

Her administration will also direct attention to educational reform, she said, especially in grading, course requirements and advising.

ASUN will continue to seek increased student participation in the student co-op, a new organization which provides members with discounts at local merchants, and more "self-determination" in student living will be high on the list of priorities, she said.

Going To Regents

In connection with the last goal, Miss Henry said ASUN will press for Board of Regents approval of a limited alcohol consumption policy in dorms and expanded hours when students may invite guests of the opposite sex to their rooms.

"In my opinion," she said, "ASUN should be 'concerned with the things directly affecting students, not on general national politics."

"The main concern should be with the close issues."

In that role, she said, "ASUN needs to work closely with the faculty and the administration."

"It's an entire university," she said. "You can't parcel it out."

Washington—Some administration economists said it may be necessary to maintain a price ceiling on meat through the summer, a period of peak demand in the country.

McCord: Haldeman
'Had To Be Aware'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convicted Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr. told Senate investigators that presidential chief-of-staff H. R. Haldeman "had to be aware" of plans to break in and bug national Democratic headquarters last year, a source close to the investigation said Friday.

The special Senate committee probing the case issued subpoenas to three lower-echelon Republican campaign workers to check McCord's story, which also is reported to implicate other top White House aides.

The White House continued to deny that any member of President Nixon's staff even knew about the crime in advance and said any employee summoned before a federal grand jury would appear and testify. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler also said the White House is "ready to work out a procedure" that would permit staff members to answer Senate investigators' questions as long as presidential aides don't have to appear at formal committee meetings.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica had been scheduled to pronounce sentence Friday on the 54-year-old McCord for his part in the Watergate conspiracy. But the judge postponed the sentencing until June 15 to give McCord time to complete his Senate testimony and to tell a federal

McCord's Lawyer
Said Ready To Quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — James W. McCord's lawyer, Gerald A. Alch, is reported ready to quit because he thinks a new attorney in the case is making McCord into a political patsy to embarrass President Nixon.

One of McCord's lawyers already has resigned because of the sudden appearance of Bernard Fensterwald, an independently wealthy Washington lawyer who once headed a celebrated wiretapping investigation. Fensterwald, a Democrat, reportedly put up $40,000 toward McCord's $100,000 bond.

One source said he believes Fensterwald's motive "is to see the White House scream," and that McCord is going along because he is eager "to tell of his own limited involvement in the planning of the Democratic headquarters bugging."

Fensterwald called the reports "sheer nonsense."

Alch, a member of attorney F. Lee Bailey's firm, represented McCord through the four-week Watergate trial and was at the defense table as a co-counsel when McCord's sentencing was postponed Friday.

Yet Alch was taken by surprise a week earlier when Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica revealed McCord had written him a letter saying there had been political pressure and perjury in the trial, and that others had been involved in the case.

VC Says U.S. Civilians
Really Military Advisers

PARIS (AP) — The Viet Cong accused the United States here Friday of keeping military advisers disguised as civilian technicians in South Vietnam in violation of the cease fire agreement.

Nguyen Van Hieu, minister of state in the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government, charged during political negotiations with the South Vietnamese government that more than 10,000 Americans remain in South Vietnam as "so-called civilian technicians."

The last of the U.S. combat forces pulled out of South Vietnam on Thursday. U.S. officials said 50 military attaches and 159 Marine guards will remain at the U.S. Embassy in Saigon.

Another 825 U.S. military personnel attached to the four-party Joint Military Commission are due to leave by Sunday.

The United States has said American civilians will be going to South Vietnam to help the government maintain its air force and to take care of other technical matters.

The State Department reported in Washington on Friday that about 8,500 Americans remain in South Vietnam and termed false any allegations that 10,000 to 20,000 military personnel are there disguised as civilians.

Charles W. Bray, department press officer, emphasized that all those listed as civilians are civilians though some may have had prior military service in Vietnam. The civilians, he said, do such jobs as maintenance, logistics and communications, both for the United States and the South Vietnamese.

At the session here, South Vietnam's deputy premier, Nguyen Luu Vien, said the U.S. technicians were in the country as part of the aid program given to the South Vietnamese and is similar to the aid accepted by many other countries, including North Vietnam.

At the same time, Vien renewed the charge that North Vietnamese troops and war materiel continued to infiltrate into South Vietnam to swell the ranks of the 300,000 Hanoi troops already there and prepare them for a major military offensive.

More Teen-age
Girls Smoking

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — The number of teen-age smokers continues to rise, even though cancer caused by smoking takes 70,000 to 80,000 lives a year, the president of the American Cancer Society said Friday.

Dr. Arthur G. James of the Ohio State University School of Medicine in Columbus said the increase comes principally among teen-age girls who have started smoking.

The cancer society said that the percentage of teen-age boys, aged 12-18, who smoke cigarettes rose from 14.7 in 1968 to 15.7 in 1972. But more significantly, the percentage of teen-age girls, 12-18, rose sharply from 8.4 in 1968 to 13.3 in 1972.

If the trend among the girls continues, the society said, the percentage of adult smokers, male and female, will be about the same. At present, the percentage of adult male smokers is 43.2, women, 30.9. The figures come from government surveys, the society said.

James spoke at a science writers seminar sponsored by the cancer society.

Lung cancer kills more people than any other cancer. An estimated 72,000 of the 350,000 who will die of cancer in 1973 will succumb to lung cancer. "And almost all of these deaths are preventable," the surgeon said.

If cigarette smoking were eliminated, the death toll for all cancer could be reduced by as much as one-fifth, he said.

Eighty per cent of lung cancers result from cigarette smoking, but it also is involved in cancers of the larynx, kidney, esophagus, pharynx, urinary bladder and pancreas.

"Altogether these sites, along with lung cancer, account for about 100,000 deaths a year," James said. "Conservatively it can be estimated that from 70,000 to 80,000 of these deaths are related to cigarette smoking."

"We're talking about people working around Nixon from 1962 on," the source said.

The three people subpoenaed to appear before the Senate panel are Sally Harmony and Sylvia Panarites, both former secretaries to Liddy, and Robert Reiser, a former administrative assistant to Jeb Stuart Magruder. Magruder, once a member of Nixon's staff, left to work in the President's re-election campaign and was among those implicated by McCord, according to Sen. Howard H. Baker, Jr., R-Tenn.

Federal marshals have served two of the three subpoenas requiring the ex-campaign workers to appear before the Senate panel Wednesday.

Danes Flock To Antitax, Antibureaucrat Party

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Denmark's traditional political parties were stunned Friday by a poll showing a massive flight of voters to a new antitax, antibureaucracy party previously shrugged off as a "political freak."

The Progress party, led by lawyer Mogens Glistrup, jumped from 7.2 per cent of the popular vote in a poll last month to 18.2 per cent in the latest poll taken by the business newspaper Boersen.

Boersen predicted that if an election was held soon the Progress party would grab 33 of parliament's 179 seats, and become Denmark's second largest party.

Glistrup, a fast-talking, 50-year-old tax specialist, formed the party just last year. He makes sweeping promises of gradual abolition of all income tax and merciless firing of 90 per cent of all public administration personnel.

Glistrup is popularly known as Mr. Zero Per Cent for his ability to bring taxable incomes, including his own, down to zero. His popularity has steadily risen despite the fact that he is under investigation for the methods by which he does away with the tax problems of his clients.

The latest jump in the polls removed any lingering doubt that his simple program, however vaguely defined, for curing the nation's economic ills was hitting home with a growing number of people in this tax-burdened welfare state.

"This is rebellion against parliamentarism as it is being run by our politicians now," warned Boersen editorially. "This is a result of long-time frustration and of the growing confidence gap between politicians and voters."

According to the poll, Glistrup's Progress party would cut heavily into the popular vote and seats of all parties now represented in parliament, and would appeal to young and old alike.

The biggest losers would be the ruling Social Democrats, and the Conservatives, and Glistrup would command enough power to force non-Socialists and Socialists to join ranks against him — or join him.

Glistrup, who says income tax is now soaring so fast that "violent revolution" would come to Denmark by 1980, is credited with having prompted government measures to cut back the state budget by $150 million this year and twice that amount next year.

The poll made public Friday was taken just after the government announced plans to do away with special tax privileges for private home owners.

All political parties in parliament, from Communists to Conservatives, have so far refused to have anything to do with the Progress party. They described Glistrup as a "demagogue," a "political freak" and "a dangerous amateur."

Political sources said the new poll made one thing pretty certain: All parties will do their utmost to make certain there is no snap election soon. The next scheduled elections would be in 1975.

Muskie Speech To Counter Nixon Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie was designated Friday by Democratic Congressional leaders to respond next Monday night to President Nixon's Friday night national televised and broadcast speech.

Muskie will deal with the same subjects as Nixon did — Vietnam and the economy — and will reply to Nixon's attack on congressional moves to force more domestic spending.

IN PERSPECTIVE

(Mr. Dobler is out of the city on business. His column will be resumed Tuesday, April 3).

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — If Sen. Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson has his way the Soviet Union will make a fundamental change, eliminating all restrictions on emigration. Not only the 100,000 Russian Jews (Jackson's figure), who have applied to emigrate to Israel but minorities and dissidents of every kind would be free to leave.

Moscow recently granted free exit to 60 Jewish families but this, in Jackson's view, is a mere token to appease American opinion. So long as the law stands requiring emigrants to pay the cost of their education, in some instances up to $25,000, Jackson will push for his amendment denying "most favored nation" status and government credits to the Soviet Union.

He has 76 sponsors in the Senate for that amendment. Whether he can hold a majority in light of the signs of relaxation and in the face of a concerted lobbying effort from the White House is the test just ahead. It will come when a trade bill is sent up to Congress.

Cold war warrior bent on breaking the understanding with the Soviet Union or a compassionate humanitarian determined to ease the plight of many thousands long suffering under a repressive regime, you take your choice. Among Jackson's colleagues in the Senate are cynics who are convinced that he is running hard for the presidential nomination in 1976, with his stand on the Soviet Union part of an effort to establish a centrist position and consolidate the support of American Jewry so generous in his 1972 try in the Democratic primaries last year.

In the meantime in this waiting interval with no White House trade bill yet in sight, events are shaping the future. The Chase Manhattan Bank in New York extended an $86 million credit to Moscow to help finance the Kama River truck project. This was matched by a credit of the same amount extended by the Export-Import Bank. Altogether the bank has underwritten $102 million in credits.

Two other items making up the total are $3,101,000 for flatware for consumer use jointly with the Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco and $11,671,000 for 500 submersible electric pump units underwritten by seven American banks. The Ex-Im Bank points out that under these agreements the dollars do not leave the United States and, therefore, they do not contribute to the big dollar deficit.

The Jackson amendment would prohibit such credits not only to the Soviet Union but to any Eastern European nation with laws restricting the free movement of peoples. Jackson is convinced that, despite the persuasive efforts of White House economic counselor Peter Flanagan on Capitol Hill, he can hold his 76 sponsors against any compromise.

For American Jewry the emigration of Russian Jews to Israel is a matter of passionate concern. Here is a resource of brains and ability for the young state and here are Jews suffering humiliation and loss of their livelihood.

Jackson is convinced that the Soviets' economic need is so great they will yield. Opening the doors for all minorities and dissidents would change the nature of the Soviet Union and other Communist states in Eastern Europe. A compromise may be possible, with the President required at six months intervals to state that visas are being granted without an excessive tax. So much of the Nixon foreign policy turns on this showdown between a powerful pressure group and the White House grand design.

JACK ANDERSON New OEO Policy: Hiring For Firing

Washington — Tough-talking Howard Phillips, brought in to dismantle the Office of Economic Opportunity, is actually hiring more than 300 new employees at a cost to the taxpayers of $1 million.

Many are right-wing cronies, with his same Young Americans for Freedom background, who are now pulling down fancy, $100-a-day wages. Others are refugees from the Committee to Re-Elect the President who had been looking for some way to tap the GOP money machine.

Even as Phillips was explaining to Congress how much he is doing to save money by closing off programs for the poor and firing veteran anti-poverty workers, he asked the Civil Service Commission to let him hire more employees. Estimates from Administration budget officials are that Phillips' final hiring spree will cost the government $1 million by the time he shuts down the OEO on June 30.

What the spurge amounts to is hiring people to fire people, a clear violation of the spirit and perhaps the letter of Civil Service regulations.

The erratic Phillips has even given some of his favorites temporary promotions and managerial jobs so they can collect higher wages when OEO finally closes and they move on to claim other federal jobs available to deserving Republicans. Almost as incredibly, Phillips is actually providing some of his new hands with shiny new furniture from the General Services Administration, at still more cost to the taxpayers.

Asked about Phillips' odd way of closing down the OEO, a spokesman said OEO was short of clerical help and needed experts to make sure employment rights were protected and to see that the closedown took place "in an orderly manner."

Footnote: Phillips has also found enough money to buy 30 American flags and stands for his patriotic lieutenants at a cost of more than $50 each. A spokesman said they were bought to counter anti-Nixon, "anti-American" posters at OEO headquarters.

Book burning — The book burners are loose again in America in numbers not seen since the days of the late Sen. Joe McCarthy. The American Library Association tells us more than 100 attempts have been made to ban controversial books from schools and libraries across the country. Worst areas: Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Texas. Usually, the library vigilantes pretend they're fighting pornography. But the books on their boogie lists are often political rather than pornographic. In Ridgefield, Conn., for example, a pack of ultraconservatives have removed a dozen books from the local high school reading list. Included in this pornographic purge were such books as the biography of Malcolm X and an expose of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

GI story — The Pentagon, in its annual appeals for more funds, likes to cite the needs of the lowly GIs. But the Pentagon is paying out a whopping $13.5 billion for civilians, at a generous average annual wage of $13,000. This is charged in a study which will be released next week by the Americans for Democratic Action. The study will claim that one million civilians are working for the Defense Department and that the figure could be cut drastically.

Last POW To Leave

Another Gateway?

In what must be viewed as an action of major importance, the City-County Planning Commission this week recommended that business zoning be granted for 33 acres of land adjacent to 20 acres already zoned for that purpose on the northeast corner of 56th and Old Cheney Road.

Business zoning already existing at the intersection, commercial development there sometime in the future is a foregone conclusion and thus it is not the issue. The issue is the size and impact of proposed future development.

Developer Hub Hall, who is seeking the zoning change, is talking in terms of a major regional shopping center which would rival Gateway in size and have only slightly less retail square footage than is spread throughout the central business district.

Recommended by a 6-2 vote of the commission, the zoning application nevertheless ran into the opposition of Planning Director Douglas Brogren who believes that proof of an existing significant market to support the proposed development should be offered. Brogren also notes that the Comprehensive Plan calls for the continued development of older shopping areas, such as College View.

As to the first point, Hall has figures to support his contention that the area will ripen steadily, marketwise. Such market analyses are always debatable, of course. But suffice it to say that developers usually don't invest in locations where they have doubts about the return. As to the second, it can't be seriously argued that older commercial districts will continue to serve the total shopping needs of a growing Lincoln, because they won't; even as it can't be seriously argued that efforts should not be made to upgrade them, because they are still important to the community-within-a-community which they serve.

In all probability there is or shortly will be economic justification for some sort of retail development at the location in question.

The City Council in taking final action on the zoning application will of course have to consider factors other than economic justification. The two most important being the impact another Gateway-size retail complex will have on the health of the central business district and the additional thrust the proposed development would give southeastern expansion. Because residential development follows business and services just as business and services follow residential growth.

It might be that another major regional shopping center in the eastern sector of the city would go a long way in burying any hopes still held for the radial, or concentric, growth of the city. Which in present Lincoln terms means growth of any significance to the west.

Potential For Harm

The vigilante-type action that appears to be threatened in the formation of an Action for Security and Liberty organization carries with it the possibility of a new wave of white man's tyranny, rather than any constructive solutions to problems dramatized at Wounded Knee.

A Valentine attorney has filed articles of incorporation for an organization of that name, and he's been quoted as saying he wants to find a means to protect "reliable, honest, taxpaying citizens." News accounts also indicate that a Gordon chapter of the group has called on northwestern Nebraskans to arm themselves, although that hardly seems consistent with the stated goal of taking "legal means" to safeguard "the security and liberty of the majority of taxpaying citizens from government bureaucracies and from violent minority groups."

Although there is nothing inherently evil about citizen action groups, the fledgling northwest Nebraska organization appears to offer more potential for harm than anything else. Indeed, it might do little more than inflame fears and promote prejudices difficult to contain in times of social change, even with the help of enlightened leadership.

Concerned Nebraskans, wherever they live, would do well to approach the problems of our red-skinned brothers with compassion and sympathy, leaving law enforcement to elected and appointed officials and directing citizen action to the task of bringing life to an American dream which has too often excluded racial and cultural minorities.

If Action for Security and Liberty promotes white hysteria, it will only delay the day when Indians become full-fledged partners in an American search for human dignity, and when whites feel secure and free because all people enjoy that condition.

JAMES RESTON

Nixon's War Powers Unexplained

NEW YORK — Now that the last of the American prisoners and troops are on their way home from Vietnam, it would be useful if President Nixon would tell the country what authority he thinks he has to carry on military action in Indochina rather than leaving the explanation to Sen. Barry Goldwater.

The senator from Arizona asserts in a letter to the New York Times that the President has the legal authority to punish violations of the Vietnam peace agreement on his own, and adds that questioning this authority is "destructive of the peace we all seek."

"The President can, if he sees need," Goldwater writes, "order reprisals in line with more than 24 acts of Congress which were judicially determined in Orlando v. Laird to provide congressional collaboration in the Indochina war."

Well, this may be so, but that "congressional collaboration" was authorized before the Congress specifically repealed the Tonkin Gulf Resolution, which had been regarded by Presidents Johnson and Nixon as legal sanction for the war. Also, if the Congress has the power to sanction and finance a war, it also has the power to withdraw both its sanction and its appropriations.

"Acting as commander-in-chief, which confers on him supreme direction over the armed forces," Goldwater adds, "the President possesses full constitutional authority to judge that the terms of the armistice which he negotiated have not been met by the enemy and that an actual state of war continues there that carries with it his power and duty to enforce that settlement."

If this is true, then President Nixon not only has the power but "the duty" without a word to Congress, to order the bombers or even American ground troops back into Vietnam to "enforce" one of the most ambiguous settlements ever negotiated at the end of a long war.

The fact is that the armistice agreement is being violated constantly by both sides, but the main American objective of the agreement was to get the Americans out of Vietnam, not to impose on the President "the duty" to get them back in whenever he personally judged that the armistice was being violated.

"As chief executive of a sovereign nation and bearer of primary powers over the conduct of foreign affairs and the maintenance of our national defense," Goldwater remarked further, "the President possesses a constitutional independence in these two fields which reinforces his authority in this situation."

This is undoubtedly true, but it is not a power "independent" of the Congress in the present situation where the President can no longer claim to be "protecting the lives" of American troops and prisoners, who are no longer there. Besides, if Goldwater is correct in all this, Nixon also has the right and duty to take whatever military action he personally wants to take in order to enforce not only the Vietnam settlement, but the Korean settlement, and for that matter, the World War II settlement.

It is odd that one of the most sincere conservatives in the Senate, who has fought against excessive presidential power for half a lifetime, should be so determined to defend such extraordinary authority for the chief executive, without even a debate on the changed circumstances since the prisoners and troops have come home.

And odder still that the President who has taken such credit for getting out of the war, should not explain what the B-52 bombers are doing in Cambodia, and why, and on what authority. This is not a subject that should be left to a couple of nonlegal amateurs, but is central to the larger issues of the President's war powers, his executive privilege, and his right to impose funds voted by the Congress.

DR. DANIEL WILLIAMS

They Had A Dream

It was a hot summer night in 1893 when Dr. Daniel Hale Williams came face to face with his future. It hinged on his decision in an emergency case involving a deliveryman named John Cornish.

Cornish had been stabbed in the heart in a saloon brawl and brought to Dr. Williams at Chicago's Provident Hospital. He was unconscious, in shock and bleeding internally.

Dr. Williams examined the victim and then weighed the risks of an operation, risks both for Cornish and himself.

The world was not ready yet for such radical steps. The most eminent medical authorities warned against even opening the chest. They said it was both impractical and irresponsible.

Dr. Williams knew that to try and fail would cost him his hard-won professional reputation. Inaction was the prudent course, but Dr. Williams knew that would cost Cornish his life.

The surgeon made his decision. Summoning six other doctors as observers, he prepared Cornish for surgery.

Dr. Williams faced formidable obstacles. Wonder drugs, blood transfusions, X-ray and heart-lung machines were unknown. Even his surgical instruments were primitive for such a delicate task.

Despite these handicaps, Dr. Williams opened the patient's chest, deftly repaired the damage and then closed the incision. Cornish survived.

The feat made medical history. It was the first successful operation on the human heart. It also was a measure of the man. Dr. Williams always had refused to let the odds intimidate him.

Born in Hollidaysburg, Pa., in 1856, Williams was thrown on his own at the age of 12. He worked his way through high school, persuaded the town doctor to take him on as apprentice and then struggled through Chicago Medical School on borrowed money. He won his degree in 1883.

"Doctor Dan," as he was fondly called, was successful in private practice but finding hospital accommodations for his Negro patients was always difficult. So, in 1891, Dr. Williams founded Provident Hospital, the nation's first interracial hospital. Later he served as chief of Freedmen's Hospital, a federal institution in Washington, D.C. He built racially integrated staffs at both hospitals and also organized nursing schools when he ran into a shortage of qualified nurses.

Dr. Williams performed many celebrated operations and gained fame as a leader in the development of 20th-century surgical techniques. His patients were both black and white, rich and poor. When Dr. Williams died in 1931, a white editor recalled this in his obituary:

"It is remarkable that so famous a man should carry his honors so lightly. He never turned a deaf ear to a call for help. One of our bankers owes his life to Doctor Dan. Many others found him willing and ready to serve without pay in the cause of humanity."

Council Salaries

Lincoln, Neb.

Would you be willing to invest 18 cents a year to make it possible for the average working citizen to run for City Council? That is how much the proposed pay raise for council would cost each Lincoln citizen. In return we would be opening the council to many people who now cannot afford to run for an office that requires approximately 30 hours of work per week but only pays $20 a week. The $20 is paid council members only if they attend the regular Monday council meeting regardless of other weekly council business.

We also would be informing the present and future council members that we feel the city's business is of sufficient importance to warrant adequate compensation for those who bear the burden of the job. The current pay is at most $1,040 a year for council members who work with a city budget in excess of $70 million annually.

The primary ballot on April 3 will carry an amendment increasing each city council member's salary to $4,000 annually. The League of Women Voters of Lincoln supports adequate compensation for council members. Join us in voting "yes" on April 3.

I think that the election of Jim Plant would be the best thing that could happen to the City of Lincoln. He is not one to let the machinery of big government push him around. He is not a candidate who would duck an issue. He would be the type of councilman who would go to bat for all the taxpayers and not for any special interest group. For a council of the people and for the people I vote Jim Plant for City Council.

Lincoln, Neb.

We would like to urge the citizens of Lincoln to vote for John Robinson for City Council in the primary election on Tuesday, April 3. We feel he is very well qualified and would be an asset to the City Council.

John has been a very active civic leader and has taken a great interest in our community as shown through his active participation in 2 1/2 years on the Goals and Policies Committee. John feels it is very important that there be more citizen involvement in community affairs. As your elected representative, he will be very concerned about your interest in city government.

Refreshing Note

Lincoln, Neb.

It is refreshing to note the candidacy of Sue Bailey for City Council. In her varied leadership experiences, especially with the League of Women Voters, Sue Bailey has shown logical, creative thinking with a capacity for good, practical action.

If your priorities for Lincoln are in the area of people and the welfare of its youth, particularly in juvenile delinquency prevention, then Sue Bailey is a good choice for City Council.

Nixon Meat Action Bugs Congressmen, Farmers

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

President Nixon seems to have managed to irritate both consumers and farmers at the same time by putting a ceiling on meat prices.

Nebraska's congressional delegation seems to be upset by the action as well.

Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., who has strongly backed Nixon moves in the past, said, "I don't like to see any controls on food prices but since this ceiling is based on the highest prices ever paid to farmers, I don't see any harm at the moment."

60 To 90 Days
"Economists say that controls on food prices alone will work for 60 to 90 days. After that you have to have controls on everything or you run into other problems," Martin added.

Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., said, "I think the farmer is being made the fall guy again and I am getting sick and tired of it. The real problem is inflation caused by government spending."

Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., who is a member of the House Agriculture Committee, said, "In my opinion the farmers deserve the good prices they are getting. The compensation was a long time coming."

Thone expressed concern about the long-term effect on food supplies. "During previous periods of food price control we have had nothing but bad dreams, black markets and rationing," he said.

'Very Poor' Advice
Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., said of the ceiling, "The President's advisors have given him very poor counsel. The benefits to the consumer if any will be of very short term."

Hruska said it was "deplorable that one commodity is being singled out as the culprit when the price of every other commodity has far outstripped the price of meat."

Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., said, "I believe they have made a serious mistake. If they are going to freeze prices they should have frozen everybody's prices including wages."

The leaders of the women's groups planning the April Fools week boycott of meat are also unhappy.

Mrs. Ethel Rosen of Wilmette, Ill., said, "Nixon is freezing prices at the highest level in history. We are still advocating a national boycott April 1-8 and are asking for meatless Tuesdays until prices drop."

Grandstand Play
Mrs. Rose West, a boycott leader in the Denver area, said, "The controls are a grandstand play but worthless."

Farm groups are also unhappy with the Nixon move to put ceilings on meat prices.

Oren Lee Staley, president of the National Farmers Organization, said, "The giant chain store owners have to make a decision as to whether they can lower prices or keep them where they are so they can make a profit." He predicted they would decide to keep prices up.

Bill Jones of the National Livestock Feeders Association predicted that price ceilings on meat would discourage farmers from producing more meat.

Reluctance

"Farmers are becoming reluctant to make new investments because every time prices reach a profitable level the government takes steps to beat them back," Jones said.

Bill Selthorst, Nebraska NFO president, said, "By placing a ceiling only on beef, pork, and lamb, Nixon has destined the producers of the products to extinction."

Selthorst called for controls on loans, credit, interest rates, construction materials, veterinary costs, iron, steel, feed, taxes, insurance, labor, transportation, fuels, fertilizer and electricity if controls were to remain on meat prices.

Elton Berck, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union, blamed the decision on the "bleatings of labor czars about food prices when they overlook skyrocketing labor costs and emotionally charged food boycotters involved in a record breaking spending spree for new cars, recreational vehicles and consumer nonessentials of all sorts."

Berck warned that if the faith of the food producer in his government were destroyed, "Children will walk the streets crying for bread. Meat will not be available at any price."

"Destroy our magnificent, efficient and underpaid food production system and the democratic system of government will die with it," he added.

Dr. Everett Peterson, University of Nebraska extension economist, said, "Livestock producers are finding it hard to understand the furor over higher meat prices when consumers accept record high prices for most other items with little complaint."

Peterson predicted that resistance to meat prices would cause declines in the production of livestock products.

Mrs. Curtis Is Scheduled For Introduction

Kearney (AP) — Mrs. Carl T. Curtis will be officially introduced to the senator's constituents at a tea April 14 preceding the Nebraska Republican Founders Day dinner at the Holiday Inn.

The event will be hosted by the wives of the other members of the Nebraska congressional delegation and the 1973 Founders Day committee.

Sen. and Mrs. Curtis, the former Mildred Baker of Palo Alto, Calif., were married Dec. 1.

College Asks For Annexation

North Platte (UPI) — The Mid-Plains Vocational Technical College of North Platte has elected to petition for annexation of its property into the city.

It is the second time Mid-Plains has asked for annexation.

The petition action has come on the heels of a recent district court decision that found improper the original 1970 annexation of the college property on the south part of the city. The Mid-Plains board moved to file a petition for annexation a second time in hopes that legal technicalities can be resolved.

It was disclosed earlier that should the annexation fail, the college could still obtain needed services such as police and fire protection from Lincoln County.

Honor Societies Report Merger

Omaha (UPI) — The National Honor Society for Men in Jesuit colleges and universities merged here Friday with the National Jesuit Women's Honor Society at a convention at the Blackstone Hotel.

The student and alumni chapters of both organizations at Creighton University were hosting the convention.

The new co-educational organization, composed of Alpha Sigma Nu and Gamma Pi Epsilon, will take the name of the men's society — Alpha Sigma Nu.

Delegates from across the country were attending the convention which was to run until noon Sunday.

District Judge Advises Civics Class

With District Judge Fred Bruns, left, advising on sticky questions of courtroom procedure, members of a Milford ninth-grade civics class held their own mock criminal trial in Seward Friday. A jury of Concordia Teachers College students returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the assault "trial" of David Hall, Milford civics teacher Mrs. Ron Jantzi, who had the "crime" staged in class several weeks ago to the surprise of her students, said the right verdict had been reached: David was not guilty of firing a gunshot at Joel Braunsroth, as he had been charged with. Serving as judge, prosecuting attorney and defense attorney, respectively, were Gary Ross, next to Bruns, Vickie Timme and Kyle Heyden. (Star Photo.)

Omaha (AP) — Charles Calhoun, 42-year-old Omaha man arrested in a drug case, has pleaded no contest to a charge of violating terms of a three-year probation he received last year for receiving stolen property.

The no contest plea is the same as a guilty plea for purposes of sentencing.

Burlington Has 84% Income Hike

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Burlington Northern Inc., Thursday reported to shareholders that consolidated income has increased 84 per cent in the last two years, and said it expects a "continuation of this upward earnings trend over the foreseeable future."

In its annual report, the diversified transportation and natural resources company said it earned $48.7 million or $3.80 per share, on consolidated revenues of $1.2 billion, versus 1971 earnings of $35.3 million, or $2.74 per share, on consolidated revenues of $1.2.

Transportation revenues in 1972 accounted for $1.1 billion total. Another $104.4 million was produced by timber, lumber, non transportation subsidiaries and other holdings, the firm said.

The report attributed 1972's gain in freight revenues of $77.5 million to a 6.8 per cent rise in ton-miles and slightly higher freight rates.

March's End To Be A Lion

March apparently will make a "lion" exit in Nebraska Saturday.

Moisture in the form of snow and rain together with strong, gusty winds in the forecast for the state.

An accumulation of four inches or more snow is expected in North Platte, Imperial, McCook and Broken Bow areas, while rain possibly mixed with snow is forecast elsewhere.

Light snow was falling at North Platte, Imperial and McCook late Friday afternoon, while Lincoln, Grand Island and Kearney reported rain.

Tourist Train May Hit Snag

North Platte (UPI) — The Nebraska Midland Railroad Co. of North Platte, formed earlier this year to construct an antique type tourist railroad near the site of the Buffalo Bill Scout's Rest Ranch, may run into a snag from the Lincoln County Historical Society.

A society spokesman, Andy Larson of North Platte, said Thursday a meeting is planned for Tuesday evening at the Lincoln County Courthouse to discuss the matter.

The railroad plans to lay track through historical society property near the Rest Ranch. However, the society plans to construct a historical museum at the site.

Larson said former Lincoln County Judge Sam Dietrich, who donated the land to the society for the museum, has expressed concern about it.

A decision on taking legal action against the railroad will be made Tuesday night.

20 Attend Environment Panel Meet

North Platte (UPI) — Some 20 local and area residents turned out for the Nebraska State Environmental Control Council meeting here Friday.

The council appeared in North Platte for one of a series of statewide hearings on Nebraska's water quality standards.

No action or decision-making came from Friday's hearing but an Environmental Council spokesman said some matters would be taken under advisement after the final hearing on the subject of water standards set for next week in Lincoln.

James Higgins, director of the council, said the primary purpose of the changes in the state's water quality standards is to bring Nebraska standards into compliance with the terms of the new federal Water Quality Act of 1972.

Loner Not Necessarily Lonely

By ROBERT PETERSON
QUESTION: — "How come you and others often spill tears over people who are alone? You assume they're lonely and want friends. Haven't you heard of loners? I'm a retired machinist, 79, and have been a loner as far back as I can remember. When I was young sex overcame my good judgment and got me involved with a crazy woman for 10 miserable years. Then we divorced and I've been happy ever since — all alone with just my dog, television and newspapers. I don't want any friends, visitors, or sympathy. So please stop assuming everyone who's alone is lonely."

ANSWER: — You're right. Probably 90% of all elders are gregarious, and love rubbing shoulders with others, and yearn for expanded human relationships. But correspondence to this column suggests that a good 10 per cent of all elders live alone and like it, and are so inherently anti-social and self-sufficient that they neither want nor need our help, pity or sympathy.

Verdigre Gets Medical People

Verdigre (AP) — This Knox County town has discovered that persistence has its rewards.

Like many small rural communities in Nebraska and elsewhere, Verdigre has had problems attracting and keeping medical personnel.

The town spent five years searching for a physician before Dr. James Carlson moved to town 10 years ago.

Another eight years were spent looking for a dentist before Dr. Jerome Rakov and his family moved to Verdigre in 1971.

Dr. Gregg Young, an optometrist, moved to the town last summer, capping a search of two years by the community.

Give Up
Assessing the town's success, Mrs. Charles Marshall, a long-time Verdigre resident, says, "I don't think small towns persist in trying to get persons in the health professions. They just try once or twice and give up."

The Carlson family produced two positive influences on the town's ability to attract more medical professionals. Dr. Carlson assisted with the projects to obtain the services of a dentist and an optometrist.

How are the doctors and their families adapting to small town life?

"It is like living with a big family," says Mrs. Rakov of Verdigre, population 584. "Everyone gets involved and you know about everyone in town."

Dr. Rakov, after practicing in Yonkers, N.Y., for 30 years, "retired" and moved west. He says, "Practice here is a lot less demanding."

Miss Shopping
While they miss the shopping opportunities of the East, both point out that it isn't necessary to have as many varied types of clothing in Verdigre.

"I'm as active or more so," says Mrs. Rakov. "Everything here is just more relaxed." She is especially fond of the wedding dances and adds, "There is nothing like them back east and we enjoy them."

The parents of three children also are taking advantage of the outdoors. "We bought a horse to ride and are planning to buy another this summer," Dr. Rakov says.

Dr. Young and his wife are Midwesterners. He is a native of Alliance and his wife is from Ohio.

The 1972 University of Nebraska graduate says, "When we came to look at the town there was a lot going on and we liked it."

Will Wait A Year
School statistics were 7-1 against making a living in a small town, but Dr. Young says he will wait at least a year before making up his mind whether to stay.

He says, however, "My wife likes it here. She can say 'hi' to everybody in town and there's no one who won't say 'hi' to her. That's the way we like it."

Dr. Young says Verdigre is "only up to about 50% of what I can handle," so twice a week he travels to O'Neill where he practices in the office of Dr. Stan Gutshall.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

but are still paying $60 monthly on mortgage. Don't have a car or money to travel. But this doesn't stop my wife. When she feels like going somewhere she walks six blocks to the highway and starts thumbing a ride. The past year she went to New Orleans, Akron, and Cleveland. And she says no one's ever made a pass at her and thinks it's safer than flying. What do you say?"

ANSWER: — Sure it's dangerous. But so are a lot of things. Old lady hitchhikers are probably safer than young ones, and her luck in getting rides must stem from the fact that motorists feel safer picking up a septuagenarian Grandma than youths of either sex. All I can say is your wife's got a lot of spunk. I just hope other grandmas aren't encouraged to start traveling via their thumbs.

QUESTION: — "What is the usual procedure for gaining admittance to a church-sponsored residence for older people?"

ANSWER: — Obtain from your pastor the names of homes sponsored by your faith. Try to visit personally as many of these homes as possible. Ask for and complete application blanks in formally applying for admission

The secret Mrs. Marshal and other residents of Verdigre have found to attract health professionals is a simple one.

The town runs ads in the biggest trade magazines in the profession they are seeking. The ads continue to run until the new resident has moved to town. Until the move, no building is erected; the town just searches and puts money in the bank.

Persistence Pays
Dr. Carlson's wife attests to the fact that persistence pays. "We were living in Lincoln where Dr. Carlson was interning after finishing medical school," she explains.

"We were looking for some place to move after the year in Lincoln was over," she says. "Verdigre was looking for a physician and we inquired. After visiting the town we went back to Lincoln and making the decision became easy."

She emphasizes that other towns "just sat back and waited for the answer. The Marshalls and others would drive down to Lincoln, take us out to dinner and return home—just being friendly and letting us know they wanted us."

According to townspeople, the Carlsons have more than repaid the $35,000 which the town invested in a clinic and equipment. In recent months they donated a tract of land for a community project which, according to Mrs. Carlson, is "just another way of saying thanks."

An attorney is the next professional being sought by the town and if its success in attracting medical people is any indication of what to expect, a new attorney should be hanging up his shingle any day now.

Firm Planning 12% Rate Hike In Natural Gas

Hastings (AP) — Industrial customers on interruptible natural gas contracts with the Kansas Nebraska Natural Gas Co. of Hastings will have their rates hiked 12%.

Rod Hansen of Scottsbluff, K-N community development specialist, said the contracts are currently being discussed with the some 60 affected customers.

Hansen said most of the customers were city power plants, hospitals, meat packing plants, schools and other large industries.

But he said the rate increase would not affect individual users.

The company cited increased costs of labor, material and construction as reasons for the 12% increase.

Brown Cow Out Next Week

ISLIP, N.Y. (AP) — A demonstration these days is only as good as its slogan.

Mrs. Pat Santoro distributed leaflets outside a supermarket here to publicize next week's scheduled meat boycott. With her were a group of about a dozen teen-agers. They waved signs reading "Don't Eat Meat," and chanted:

"How, now, brown cow, two-forty-nine a pound, wow!"

QUESTION: — "They say honesty is the best policy. But don't you agree it can get you in trouble? My boss often goes up to employees and asks their opinion about things such as 'How do you like working here?' or 'Don't you think our working conditions are ideal?' Because he said he wanted honest answers I've given him some that hit him right between the eyes. My wife says that at age 55 I'd be smarter to butter him up or keep my mouth shut. But shouldn't I be honest?"

ANSWER: — Honesty may be the best policy, but it must be tempered with a regard for the other fellow's ego. As we grow older and wiser we're often able to deduce from a person's question what kind of an answer he wants and expects. If we want to be kind, make him feel good, or get along amiably with him we must learn to be less candid and more understanding.

QUESTION: — "If you would like a booklet, '35 Ways to Make Your Home at Home,' write to Robert Peterson, Dispatch Letter Service, 25 W. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10036, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover handling costs. (c) 1973, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Is The 'Unknown Force' A 'Living Force?'

The Lancaster County Sheriff's office found it to be a case of "damage by unknown force."

Whatever or whoever did it neatly removed a square of shingles four feet by four feet from the roof of a barn on the Clem Knochel farm near Bennet.

Some mystifying elements in the case are that the shingles were found in a pile just below the bare area, and the fact that sheathing boards in the roof below the shingles were not damaged.

Those elements seem to rule out wind, helicopter rotor wash (the Knochels think they heard one hovering their farm building), and something dropped from an airplane. Lightning also seems to be ruled out; there was no fire. Vandalism appears to be ruled out by a very steep roof.

One explanatory theory has it that a farmer in the area, tired of attempting to walk in apparently bottomless mud, has invented a new method of transportation.

Authorities also are investigating a possible link between the damage in the roof and a power failure the area experienced Wednesday night, the night the damage occurred. It has been determined that a fuse had blown in an electrical substation.

And now, if you have read this far, you will probably be interested in the The Lincoln

Star's very own theory. It was just a hungry raccoon trying to get in and frustrated by the sheathing underlying the shingles. That would make it a "living force" and not an unknown force.

Sampson Will Discuss Engineering For Future

Arthur F. Sampson, administrator of the General Services Administration, will speak on "engineering for the future" Friday at the annual E-Week convocation at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

E-Week displays on the subject of "engineering — ecology vs. economy" will open for public view in the Engineering Center on the campus beginning at 1 p.m. Friday and closing at 5 p.m. Saturday. The displays will stay open till 10 p.m. Friday and reopen at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Sampson is to speak at 11 a.m. Friday at the convocation in the Centennial Room of the Nebraska Student Union.

At the E-Week banquet, beginning at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Omaha Room of the Nebraska Center, Richard Anderson of Battelle Research, Columbus Laboratories, will speak on "opportunities for engineers in the '70s."

Health Planning Group Will Outline Budgets

Alternate work programs with budgets ranging from $95,000 to $175,000 will be outlined Thursday at an evening meeting of the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council board of directors.

The meeting is to begin at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln Center Building, 15th and N.

At least three alternate programs are being developed on the basis of information and preferences supplied by the various area councils which are members of the southeast Nebraska group.

The board's preferences will determine health council work priorities during the next 15 months.

The council will also discuss legislative issues and review a report on environmental conditions in the region.

Conviction Of Brodrick Is Overturned

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The Nebraska Supreme Court Friday overturned the Dawes County District Court conviction of Don Brodrick on a charge of unlawfully possessing amphetamines.

The high court said a motion to suppress evidence, overruled by the low court, should have been sustained.

The Supreme Court remanded the case to the district court for a new trial.

Brodrick was arrested and charged after a party at a Chardon cafe in February 1972. An analysis by a state chemist of a pill in his possession determined that it contained amphetamine. However, the pill was destroyed during analysis and thus was not available for examination and analysis by defense witnesses.

On those grounds, defense attorneys moved to suppress the results of the analysis of the pill. The Supreme Court said this motion to suppress should have been granted.

Savers at the First have always been able to get an effective yield of 6% on 5¾% Two-Year Savings Certificates.

So what's new?

If you've been confused by recent interest rate and yield claims, consider this...

Getting an effective yield of 6% is really nothing new.

Savers at the First, who have let their interest accumulate and compound until maturity, have always received an effective yield of 6% on their 5¾% Two-Year Savings Certificates.

But, not everybody with Two-Year Savings Certificates wants to let their interest accumulate and compound. Some prefer to receive their interest monthly or quarterly... at the guaranteed annual rate of 5¾%. So, we provide that service too.

The point is that whether you purchase a Three-Month, One-Year, or Two-Year Savings Certificate at the First, your money will earn the highest respective rate of bank interest allowed by law. And the interest will be compounded daily.

Savings Certificates you can buy for any amount from $50 up...another way for you to get an edge on tomorrow today. At the First.

BY GRACIA SIEB

There are always those people participating in community activities who, although they are seldom in the limelight, greatly contribute to the success of a particular function. The Lincoln Community Playhouse productions are no exception and the Playhouse personnel recognizes that the backstage volunteers are the backbone of the theater presentations.

According to John Wilson, director of the Lincoln Community Playhouse, the facility simply "could not function without the volunteers." Indicative of this are the many and varied tasks assumed by these dedicated people. The range of volunteer duties include everything from serving coffee during intermission and taking reservations on the telephone to building sets and running the lights and sound effects.

The volunteers' rewards are not based on monetary compensation, but rather their bounty is evaluated in terms of the close friendships developed with other volunteers and the end satisfaction of a job well done.

Although not wishing to detract from the glory well-earned by the actresses and actors on stage, Mr. Wilson stated that often the audience fails to see beyond the performers and ultimately it does not realize the hard work being conducted behind the scenes. However, in most cases the performers and directors will be the first to acknowledge and praise the efforts of the backstage crews which, in fact, provide the essential aid needed for effective character portrayal and plot development.

A prime example of the volunteers' diligence is the current Playhouse season, which features five major play presentations, not including performances by the children's theater, the puppeteers and the Ham Amns, an outgrowth of the LCP Auxiliary. Literally weeks before the productions are staged, sets are planned and the actual construction, which requires several hours of tedious work five nights a week and often on weekends, is underway.

From this time until the last performance is given, says Mr. Wilson, the momentum of the LCP activities continues to increase. As the set construction progresses under the supervision of the technical director, others search through Lincoln and surrounding communities for appropriate props — and we might add, often at their own expense — and still others prepare new costumes or fit and alter old ones.

When actual rehearsals begin many work to perfect the lights and sound effects for the various scenes, and as opening night approaches the make-up chairman and his or her two to four assistants begin working with the performers, along with professional hairdressers from the Lincoln area, who lend their talents for every Playhouse production.

Mr. Wilson also noted that during these initial weeks, several volunteers assist with the publicity and prepare program notes. Likewise the door hosts arrange for ushers and at the performances they greet the patrons as they enter, and take tickets. The house manager makes sure that the whole facility is in order for the performances, which includes proper staffing as well as efficient coordination and communication between the front of the house and backstage areas.

Not to be forgotten, adds Mr. Wilson, are the 20-plus members of the board of directors, who donate a great deal of time to monthly meetings and various committees, where they handle personnel matters. This includes the supervision of the entire facility's building and grounds, the planning and scheduling, and the long-range aims and objectives.

The Lincoln Community Playhouse volunteers are not members of an exclusive society, as indicated by the comfortable intermingling of several-year veterans and novice assistants, and eager, new faces always are welcome. Says Director Wilson, "If you are breathing we can use you, and if you're not, we'll store you in the attic!"

ABBY: tell her you're busy

DEAR ABBY I have a neighbor who says you aren't a mother unless you have a daughter. I have two boys, ages 4 and 5, and she has two boys, the same ages as mine, but she also has a 2-year-old girl. She loves the little girl and hates the boys, and she is always lord it over me that I don't have a daughter. Abby, I love my boys and really don't want any more kids.

She treats her boys so mean, and has a wicked temper. She hit the older one so hard with her fist she knocked out two of his teeth and he had to have his lip stitched up. This girl is only 23 and she's been everything from a Baptist to a Mormon, and she's still trying to find herself. I'm Catholic and she keeps putting down the Catholics until I could scream.

How can I get rid of her? I am tired of having this pest barge in here every day and take up my time.

NEIGHBOR
DEAR NEIGHBOR: There is only one way to get rid of a pest.

Tell her to please call first and ask if she may come over. And if she barges in without calling, tell her you are too busy to chat with her and send her on her way.

DEAR ABBY I have always wanted to have my family history traced, but I can't afford to spend a lot of money to do it. Have you any suggestions?

A New Voice Of Protest

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

A new voice has recently been added to those that have, for the past several years, been raised in protest against the destruction that man has wrought upon his own natural environment. It is the collective voice of American artists, whose interest in the ecological struggle flows quite naturally from their professional concern for the concepts of beauty, order and harmony.

One of the leading spokesmen for this new trend towards activism among artists, is painter Alan Gussow, whose recently-published book, "A Sense Of Place" will provide the inspiration for a major exhibition of American landscape painting to be held jointly by Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery and Joslyn Art Museum in Omaha during the fall of 1973.

Mr. Gussow has been in Lincoln this week for consultations with Norman Geske, director of Sheldon, and William McGonagle of Joslyn, concerning the final selection of works for the show. He has spent the past six months traveling across the United States examining paintings whose subject matter renders them appropriate for possible inclusion in the exhibition.

Deriving its theme from Mr. Gussow's book, the showing — which will also be entitled "A Sense Of Place" — will feature the landscape painting done by a wide variety of American artists. "The exhibition will trace the tradition of American landscape painting — which has most commonly been identified with the 19th century — up to the present moment," observed Mr. Gussow. "It will include most of the paintings that were reproduced in the book, in addition to suitable works that are a part of the two galleries' permanent collections, and about 100 additional paintings by contemporary artists," he continued.

Mr. Gussow — whose book serves the purpose of adding the images and the voices of artists to the ecological movement — believes that the environmental struggle is concerned with more than simply water and air pollution. "Ultimately," he stated, "it is a question of values. What we're trying to preserve is something that makes us human."

In a modern, technological society, Mr. Gussow believes that everything begins to look alike. And, he added — alluding to an American heritage of intimate involvement with the land — "as a result, we run the risk of forgetting our roots."

He noted that there has been a tendency away from noticing the landscape. However, he feels that this is changing; that there is an encouraging movement towards a realization of the beauty and the worth of the natural environment. "The love of, and involvement with the land still lives," he said.

Although much recent art has been concerned with what Mr. Gussow describes as the "isms," he observed that landscapes have provided a constant source of inspiration for painters. And now, because of recent developments, "nature painting has a new importance," he added.

Another important aspect of this newly-revived artistic concern for the land is the increasingly active involvement of artists in the planning that must accompany the physical and technological expansion of a modern society. Mr. Gussow has been called on to testify in a number of cases concerning the aesthetic implications of such things as the installation of power lines and the widening of roads; and he also served as an advisor on conservation matters to the late Robert F. Kennedy.

The idea of artists working with planners is according to Mr. Gussow, a radically new and unconventional one. However, it would seem that it is also highly desirable because, as Mr. Gussow observed, "The artist is able to perceive and evaluate things that other people sense but cannot verbalize."

Marchathon Has No Age Barriers

By LINDA OLIG

When the young and young at heart begin the 16-mile trek for the March of Dimes on Saturday morning, April 7, those ambitious and self-sacrificing marchers will be joined by a spry octogenarian — in chronological age only — who is just as young at heart and in spirit as the best of them.

And Omer R. Frey may just be the oldest person to ever have participated in such a charitable walk.

Walking alongside her grandfather in the Marchathon will be Miss Jane Frey, an avid recruiter. It was Miss Frey, a participant in last year's initial Marchathon in Lincoln, who recruited her grandfather for the long walk to raise funds for the National Foundation — March of Dimes which is committed to the continuing battle against birth defects.

The Southeast senior, who completed the 16-mile walk last year, observed that "I don't think he knew what he was getting into at the beginning but later he said he would do anything he could do to help." Mr. Frey countered with "Females have such a way of arriving at conclusions so vastly different from that of males," but he continued to add that he was "flattered to have my granddaughter remember me. Lots of folks don't have grandchildren or children to talk to when they get to be my age." Do they have a close relationship? "We must be (awfully close), considering the circumstances," Mr. Frey proudly said, noting that he permitted his granddaughter to talk him into such an undertaking.

Mr. Frey, who claims that "Jack Benney and I have been 39 for quite some time now," is an active man who spurns all thoughts of retirement — he has been associated with Bankers Life Nebraska since 1912 — and he views the Marchathon in his own particular way. "Today's marching high school population is tomorrow's child-bearing group. Their expressed interest in reducing birth defects is our interest, too." And, "Our high school population will stretch its muscles by walking in an honest effort to encourage the over-high-school population to contribute money."

Each marcher seeks his or her sponsors who pledge to contribute a minimum of five cents for each mile completed. Mr. Frey also will have sponsors — and he pledges to "Walk as far as I can." Sponsor sheets may be obtained from the Marchathon Office — 432-0118.

More than 340 persons participated in last year's Marchathon for the March of Dimes, earning pledges totalling $5,500. According to Mrs. Stanley B. Wentz, state volunteer advisor for the March of Dimes and coordinator of the march, it is hoped that both the number of participants and dollars pledged will be tripled in this second annual Marchathon — with the money being used for the birth defect research, direct patient aid, pre-natal care, public and professional education, and genetic counseling. Mrs. V. T. Miller is serving as Marchathon chairman.

The marchers, however, won't be the only persons actively participating in the 16-mile walk. The Marchathon will reflect total community involvement, as evidenced by the many organizations and individuals which have offered to help in various ways. For example, former Nebraska football stand-out Jerry List has devoted many hours to speaking engagements at recruitment assemblies, and he will rank among the dignitaries — including Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and the state poster child, Kirk TeSelle of Milford — who will be on hand to encourage the marchers during the long walk which will begin and end at East High School.

Firemen and student nurses also will lend assistance during the Marchathon, as well as members of several antique car clubs — the Cornhusker Early V-8 Club, the Cornhusker Model A Club, and the Nebraska Model T Club — as well as members of the Lincoln Amateur Radio Club and the Shrine Clowns.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

Here is a well-played hand. South (Bobby Jordan, Philadelphia star) got to four hearts and West led the king of clubs, then shifted to a diamond.

Jordan won in his hand and returned a club, West rising with the ace to return his singleton spade. Jordan won in dummy with the ace, cashed the king of diamonds, then played the Q-J-10 of clubs, East steadfastly refusing to ruff.

West won with the jack and was forced to return a diamond, permitting declarer to discard his spade loser from dummy as he ruffed the return in his hand. As a result, Jordan wound up with ten tricks — even though he had started the hand with four losers consisting of a spade, a heart and two clubs.

West would almost surely have defeated the contract had he not gone up with the ace of clubs at trick three, but who in the world would want to ruin such a well-played hand?

POWs Report Hanoi Torture

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

More former U.S. prisoners of war discussed on Friday the torture and brutality they underwent at the hands of their Communist captors. "After about an hour or two," said one man, "I actually hoped they would kill me."

The men had kept silent until the last of the POWs originally scheduled for release in Indochina landed Thursday at Clark Air Base in the Philippines.

At news conferences and in interviews on Friday, the men provided fresh details. They did not discuss reports of servicemen who cooperated with the enemy or possible retribution. Military sources said earlier they had been told by the Pentagon to maintain their silence on this issue.

Air Force Lt. Col. Kenneth North of Welfleet, Mass., who spent more than six years as a prisoner, said he was tied with wire, kicked and slapped around, then was trussed up and hit with rifle butts until he wished for death.

During his interrogation, North said at a news conference in Chicopee, Mass., "I showed them (the North Vietnamese) my Geneva convention card."

with the rules on treatment of prisoners. "They tore it up," Navy Lt. Cmdr. Paul E. Galanti of Richmond, Va., who was shot down June 17, 1966 said he was surrounded by about 50 North Vietnamese peasants when he reached the ground.

"I wasn't prepared to become a prisoner," he said, "and had decided I would never get captured. I was going to fire five bullets into the Vietnamese and use the sixth on myself, but then I decided being dead lasts a long time."

Galanti said he surrendered and later was interrogated and repeatedly tortured with ropes by the North Vietnamese. He said he finally answered questions — with fabricated answers.

"I had talked under torture and was assured by them that I was the only guy ever to do it," he said. "I was sure I was the only guy who had cracked."

Later, Galanti said, he was taken to Hanoi and marched through the streets. "The people along the line were about 30 deep. I was the last guy in the parade and some of the people surrounded us and somebody gave me a soccer type kick in my groin. It was a grim situation. They kept chanting 'son of a bitch, son of a bitch.'"

Hayden Charges POWs 'Liars, Pawns Of Nixon'

Los Angeles (UPI) — Antiwar activist Tom Hayden Friday labeled returning American prisoners of war "liars, hypocrites and pawns."

Hayden, husband of actress Jane Fonda, said neither he nor his wife felt hurt by statements from the returnees that the antiwar movement prolonged the war or worsened conditions for the prisoners. "They were the best-treated prisoners in any war in history," he said.

"If they think the peace movement prolonged the war, they ought to ask themselves what the Pentagon does," Hayden said.

"They are liars if they suggest that they were abused by the Vietnamese. By all accounts, they were the best-treated prisoners in any war in history."

"They are hypocrites because they are trying to pose as heroes when they killed many more people than they would care to mention," Hayden went on.

Hearty Welcome From Family

Air Force Capt. David P. Mott of Fargo, N.D., gets welcome home hugs from his son, David, 6, and daughter, Andrea, 7, as he departs at Scott Air Force Base in Illinois Friday. Mott's wife Phyllis waits in line. Mott had been a prisoner in North Vietnam since May 1972. He will be debriefed and given medical checks at Scott.

Families Evacuated In Missouri Floods

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Hundreds of families were left homeless in eastern Missouri by the swollen Missouri and Mississippi rivers Friday, while volunteers worked to keep levees from collapsing under the pressure of the rising water.

The National Guard stood by to aid evacuation of families from flooded areas if needed. Col. James Bash, the guard's state coordinator for disaster planning, said volunteers and Civil Defense people were evacuating flood victims so far.

Meanwhile, Gov. Christopher S. Bond took federal officials on a brief tour of flooded areas near Jefferson City after declaring an emergency situation for flooded areas. A spokesman for Bond said the state of emergency is the first step in applying for federal flood relief funds.

Sandbagging crews in Bridgeton, in northwestern St. Louis County, watched helplessly Friday as the Missouri River broke through a dike they had been working on for several days. Police said the area behind the dike filled quickly with four to five feet of water, requiring eight to 10 families to leave their homes. Authorities said another 15 to 20 homes would be affected by late Friday night.

Police said efforts to repair the break proved futile and were abandoned. The floodlighting crews there were sent to the West Alton area, where water from both the Mississippi and Missouri rivers were lapping at the tops of sand-bagged levees. A Corps of Engineers spokesman said workers were hard pressed but had managed to keep up with the rising water.

"For the first time in several days, I can say we will probably make it here," the spokesman said Friday afternoon. "The levee looks like it will hold."

Further north, residents in the Winfield, Hannibal and Louisiana, Mo., areas breathed a little easier as the Mississippi crested and began to drop slowly.

Richard Nieman of the Corps of Engineers said, however, that it was too soon to tell whether the levees will hold.

Now 72, Thomas recently bought his old home from other heirs in the family. That's right. He removed the board, found the penny still there.

'Farmers' Gates To Stay Locked'

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

"The farmers' gates are locked tight and they are going to stay that way until the summer hollers uncle," said Bill Sellhorst of Dodge, state president of the militant National Farmers Organization (NFO).

Speaking to a crowd estimated at more than 600, Sellhorst said "The decline in the number of farmers has made those who are still left more powerful than ever. We are only 5% of the population, but we feed the rest of them. They are going to look mighty funny running around without any food and clothing."

Sellhorst told newsmen that it had taken the industry 7 days to force the price of hogs down but the farmers had put it back up again in just 2 days. "If we could get all the farmers working together at the same time we could do it in 16 hours," he said.

Three-Pronged Reason
Sellhorst said the current high price of meat was due to a combination of three things. "There was the huge death loss and lack of gain due to bad weather problems in feed lots, there was the generally bullish attitude of farmers who felt prices had been too low too long and there was the NFO efforts to get a better price through contracts."

For the benefit of non-farmers in the audience, Sellhorst compared the purchasing power of a steer in 1947 with the purchasing power of a steer sold at today's prices.

"I bought a new tractor in 1947 equipped with starter, lights, a cultivator and everything else you could get on a tractor with the money from the sale of just 4 steers and I had more than $300 left over to spend on something else," he recalled.

"Today to buy a two-plow tractor similarly equipped it would take between 11 and 12 steers. This is the real problem. We have to have a price freeze on everything we buy at the same time meat is frozen, or we will simply have to quit raising livestock. It is as simple as that," he said.

No Problem Before
Sellhorst reminded the crowd that steers had reached present price levels in 1947 without causing such a problem with consumers.

"It takes three things to sustain life. Air, water and food, in that order. The problem farmers have today stems from the fact that too many consumers believe it is, beer, boats and cigarettes," he said.

Sellhorst predicted that the present action to curtail meat prices would result in a huge membership increase for the National Farmers Organization. "We are the only farm organization that is ready to act in the present situation," he said.

Bombs Dropped On Cambodia For 23rd Day

Honolulu (UPI) — American warplanes bombed communist troop concentrations and positions in Cambodia for the 23rd consecutive day Friday.

The U.S. Pacific Forces Command said the raids were flown by B52 heavy bombers and tactical fighter-bombers at the request of the Cambodian government. The command spokesman declined further comment.

Other military sources said some of the bombing was concentrated around Highway 4 and along Highway 1, where heavy fighting between Cambodian troops and communists has occurred in recent days.

The planes avoided targets near Phnom Penh because of bad weather around the capital, the sources said.

City Departments Ask For $139 Million Budget

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City department heads presented a preliminary six-year capital improvements program totaling $139 million to city planners Friday.

Action on the proposed budget is expected at another special City-County Planning Commission meeting next Friday.

After the budget is reviewed by the commission, it will continue down the budgetary road to the mayor and finally, to the City Council.

Budgets reviewed included Public Works, Lincoln Electric System (LES), Finance, Public Utilities, Parks and Recreation, Lincoln General Hospital, Fire and city libraries.

As in previous years, the largest chunk of the $139 million is being requested by the Public Works Department.

Director Bob Obering presented a $52.4 million budget covering the period from Sept. 1, 1973, to Sept. 1, 1979.

Projects scheduled include the Northeast Radial, projected to cost $30 million.

For 1973-74, $1.6 million is being programmed for right-of-way land acquisition. During the overall six-year period, $9.6 million is budgeted.

In answer to commission members' questions on the 70th Street widening project approved by the City Council this year, Obering noted that construction should get under way June 1.

He said that the widening of 70th to four lanes will be undertaken in two parts — construction from O to A to be completed this summer and construction from A to Old Post Rd. to be completed a year later.

LES Administrator Walt Canney presented a $43 million six-year program.

Long Range Plans Of that amount, Canney emphasized that long range plans call for burying distribution lines underground.

Finance Director James Mallon explained his request for $7.1 million, which he said is needed for construction of a bus terminal and parking garage in downtown Lincoln.

The facilities are a part of the proposed City Services Building at 11th and O.

Funds for both items are included in the 1973-74 budget, with $1.4 million allocated to the bus terminal portion and $5.9 million allocated to the parking garage portion.

$275,000 Asked Additionally, Mallon is requesting $275,000 to expand the present parking facilities to the north of the County-City Building.

Plans call for a double deck to provide an additional 140 stalls for the public and to provide sheltered parking for police vehicles.

However, the number of parking spaces may be reduced, Mallon explained, if part of the deck is used as an exercise area for prisoners held in the City-County jail.

The Parks and Recreation Department is requesting $7.2 million for projects during the next six years.

Director Don Smith explained that the possibility of receiving federal matching funds looks remote for two projects given top priority by the Parks and Recreation Board.

The two projects are $550,000 for an 18-hole golf course in northeast Lincoln and $450,000 for an indoor-outdoor swimming pool at Meadow Lane School.

Park Money The 1973-74 program also includes funds to complete development of Peter Pan, Ballard, University Place and Bethany Parks.

Other departments are requesting:

—$33 million for Lincoln General Hospital for land acquisition for additional parking lots, an addition to the hospital for expansion of patient services and for major equipment.

—$221,000 for the Fire Department for new fire stations located at Sycamore and A and at 27th and Old Cheney Rd.

—$149 million for sanitary sewer system improvements and $104 million for water supply and distribution projects.

—$430,000 for Lincoln city libraries, including construction of six station libraries and expansion of the Bennett Martin Public Library.

The $139 million program compares to the $108.2 million six-year program requested by city departments last year.

WHERE IT ENDED ... Lincoln man's car against a house.

Man Jailed After 6 Crashes

A 22-year-old Lincoln man's car struck three parked cars, a light pole, a chain link fence and a house Friday night. The man, who fled on foot, was apprehended and jailed, police said.

The man was driving a new car owned by Truman Huckleba, who is visiting in Lincoln from Georgia, police said.

Police said the Lincoln man backed into two cars owned by J. G. Dering, 1120 New Hampshire, and Philip Hergenrader, 1116 New Hampshire, and a light pole.

Damages were estimated at $75 to the Dering auto, $1,000 to the Hergenrader car, and $10 to the pole, police said.

The man then drove to 26th and Garfield where he sideswiped a parked car owned by Irvin Jiskra of 1605 So. 26th, causing about $250 damage, according to police.

'Discipline' Emphasized By Dinsmore

Lincoln Board of Education candidate Martin A. Dinsmore Friday said he would favor "programs and actions which support respect and discipline" if elected to the board.

In a prepared statement, Dinsmore said he believes "respect" should be added as a "fourth R" in education.

Dinsmore said he is "concerned with the loss of respect so evident in our society today," and suggested "we sometimes lose sight of the fact that with each freedom goes a responsibility to use that freedom wisely and respect the rights of others."

"While broadened education may show that several viewpoints may exist on a subject, it is discipline that maintains the respect for both the majority and minority viewpoints," said Dinsmore.

"I believe that it is necessary for our education system to help instill this sense of discipline and respect by both practicing and preaching it."

cording to police.

He then drove to South 47th St., police said, where he ran over a fence at the rear of the Erwin Siemans residence, 4701 Newton, and crashed into the home of George A. Brown, 2218

So. 47th. Police said they apprehended the 22-year-old at his home.

The Huckleba auto was a total wreck, police said, and damage to the Brown home was estimated at about $5,000.

Missing Lincoln Youth Found Floating In Lake

The body of an 18-year-old youth was found Friday afternoon floating in about four feet of water in Holmes Lake in southeast Lincoln.

Lancaster County sheriff's deputies identified the youth as Scott C. Nolan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Nolan of 7221 Old Post Rd.

Nolan's body was spotted by a class of fifth graders from nearby Helen Hyatt Elementary School at 5140 Calvert. The fifth graders were out on a nature hike.

Nolan's body, clad in jeans, a light purple shirt, and an Air Force blue jacket, was found floating at the southwest end of the lake.

A team of Lincoln Fire Department scuba divers removed the body from the water.

Lincoln police said Nolan's automobile was found on Feb. 18 parked at Skyline Drive and

Federal Agency Makes First Lincoln Arrest

The first arrest ever made in Lincoln by the Drug Abuse and Law Enforcement Agency of the U.S. Dept. of Justice came to light Friday.

U.S. District Atty. Daniel Wherry said that Steven Harnsberger, 22, of 938 So. 15th was arrested March 20 by two undercover agents from the federal agency.

Harnsberger, who was charged before U.S. Magistrate C. M. Pierson on March 20 with distributing cocaine, was bound over Friday to U.S. District Court in Lincoln after a hearing before Pierson.

Harnsberger was released on a $2,500 personal recognizance bond, according to Wherry.

Capt. Lowell Sellmeyer said there is "no sign that violence was involved in the death."

He said an autopsy revealed that the youth had died by drowning.

Sheriff's deputies said Nolan's billfold and one glove was found in the abandoned car. When Nolan's body was found the other glove was on one hand.

Mother Drowns Baby; Says It Favored Lover

Tokyo (UPI) — When Mrs. Keiko Shinohara gave birth to a baby in January, she thought it looked like her lover.

Mrs. Shinohara, 25, her affair over, wanted to remain with her 26-year-old husband Teuchi, a mechanic, so she drowned the child in a river.

"The baby looked like my lover, not my husband," she said. "I took my lover a picture of it, and he agreed I killed the baby for fear of losing my husband's love."

Police told Mrs. Shinohara that blood tests had proved conclusively that the child was her husband's and could not have been that of the other man.

Nobel Took Nitro

Stockholm — A highly diluted form of nitroglycerin — which Alfred Nobel discovered how to detonate with a gunpowder cap — was soon found useful in treating some heart patients. And, ironically, among the first patients for whom it was prescribed was Nobel himself.

Coalition Against Radial Has Enough Signatures

Election Commissioner Bill Davidson confirmed Friday that petitions calling for a charter amendment which could block construction of the Northeast Radial contain more than the required signatures.

Davidson said 2,228 signatures were required.

The Coalition Against the Radial filed petitions containing more than 4,000 signatures with the city clerk's office last week.

The charter amendment will be on the May 1 general election ballot.

GOP Backs Salary Hike For Council

The executive committee of the Lancaster County Republicans voiced unanimous support Friday of the April primary charter amendment to increase City Council members' salaries to $4,000 annually, according to Chairman Art Knox.

The executive committee believed this change would make it possible for potential candidates from more occupational backgrounds to give serious consideration to running for the city council, Knox said. This action would improve the quality of representation on the council, he added.

Muggy Sees Stevens Creek Development

City Council candidate Robert Muggy said Friday that the city already has committed itself to developing Stevens Creek.

Muggy contended the question is not whether the area should be open to development—but when, since the city has allowed IBM in the area.

Muggy said it is "inevitable, that once Stevens Creek is opened, there will be a rush on this area, with many waiting to get in for some time."

City Offices Should Stay Open—Sheldon

City Council candidate Harold Sheldon suggested Friday that city offices should remain open at least two nights a week.

Sheldon said the city should serve residents who cannot otherwise conduct city business without taking time off from work.

Additionally, he contended that the Police Department could better spend its time "for more useful crime solving" than by its constant policy of checking local bars and lounges.

J. Robinson Favors Report

City Council candidate John Robinson expressed concern Friday that the present council has been dragging its feet on the Goals and Policies Committee report.

Robinson, a member of the committee, said he strongly favors the report and if elected will seek a public hearing on the matter.

Citizens Group Plans Meeting On Budget Cuts

Citizens for Survival of Human Services will meet Monday at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln Center Building, fifth floor. The group will receive a fact sheet of all local programs being affected by federal budget cuts.

The Nebraska chapter of the National Association of Social Workers, the Chapter V National Welfare Association, City Wide Tenants Association and Nebraskans for Peace have officially endorsed the Citizens for Survival of Human Services, according to Susan B. Bauer, of the Lincoln Action Program.

'Next Week Is Job Week' For Eisenhower

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Make way in the job market for one more entry David Eisenhower gets out of the Navy Saturday, his 25th birthday.

"Next week is job week for us," said his wife, Julie, younger daughter of President and Mrs. Nixon. "That's when David will decide what he wants to do."

His wife said David has several offers, including one from a Miami television station. But he wants to write for a newspaper or periodical.

"It would be a column-type thing, a think piece," she added. "He'll be discussing budget cuts and will do in-depth studies. He has talent in this field and if this is what he wants, then I think it would be fine."

John Robinson

From Harry "Pete" Peterson
Retiring City Councilman
To my friends,

Having served on the City Council for the past four years, I know the demands of the job. It takes sincere dedication and great effort to be an effective member of the Council.

I know John Robinson, candidate for the City Council, and he can do the job! John has been involved in activities such as the city's Goals and Policies Committee, Open Door Health Center and many others which keep Lincoln growing and improving. The City Council needs such a person!

My vote on April 3 is for John Robinson

Sincerely,
Harry Peterson

America is a land of bells!

Wedding bells, door bells, dinner bells, school bells, sleigh bells . . . all speak of a country where freedom from tyranny exists.

Chimes also keynote freedom of speech as commentators broadcast the news. Typewriter bells ring out freedom of the press. And church bells, whether they be the musical chimes from a cathedral's spire, or the ding dong from the steeple of a village chapel, typify freedom of religion.

Churches throughout the land are open to all. Inside their doors, we cast aside worry that shackles our hearts in this atomic age. We find strength and courage to face the unknown future. Our faith, hope and trust in God, who says, "Fear not; for I am with thee," is renewed and peace fills our anxious souls.

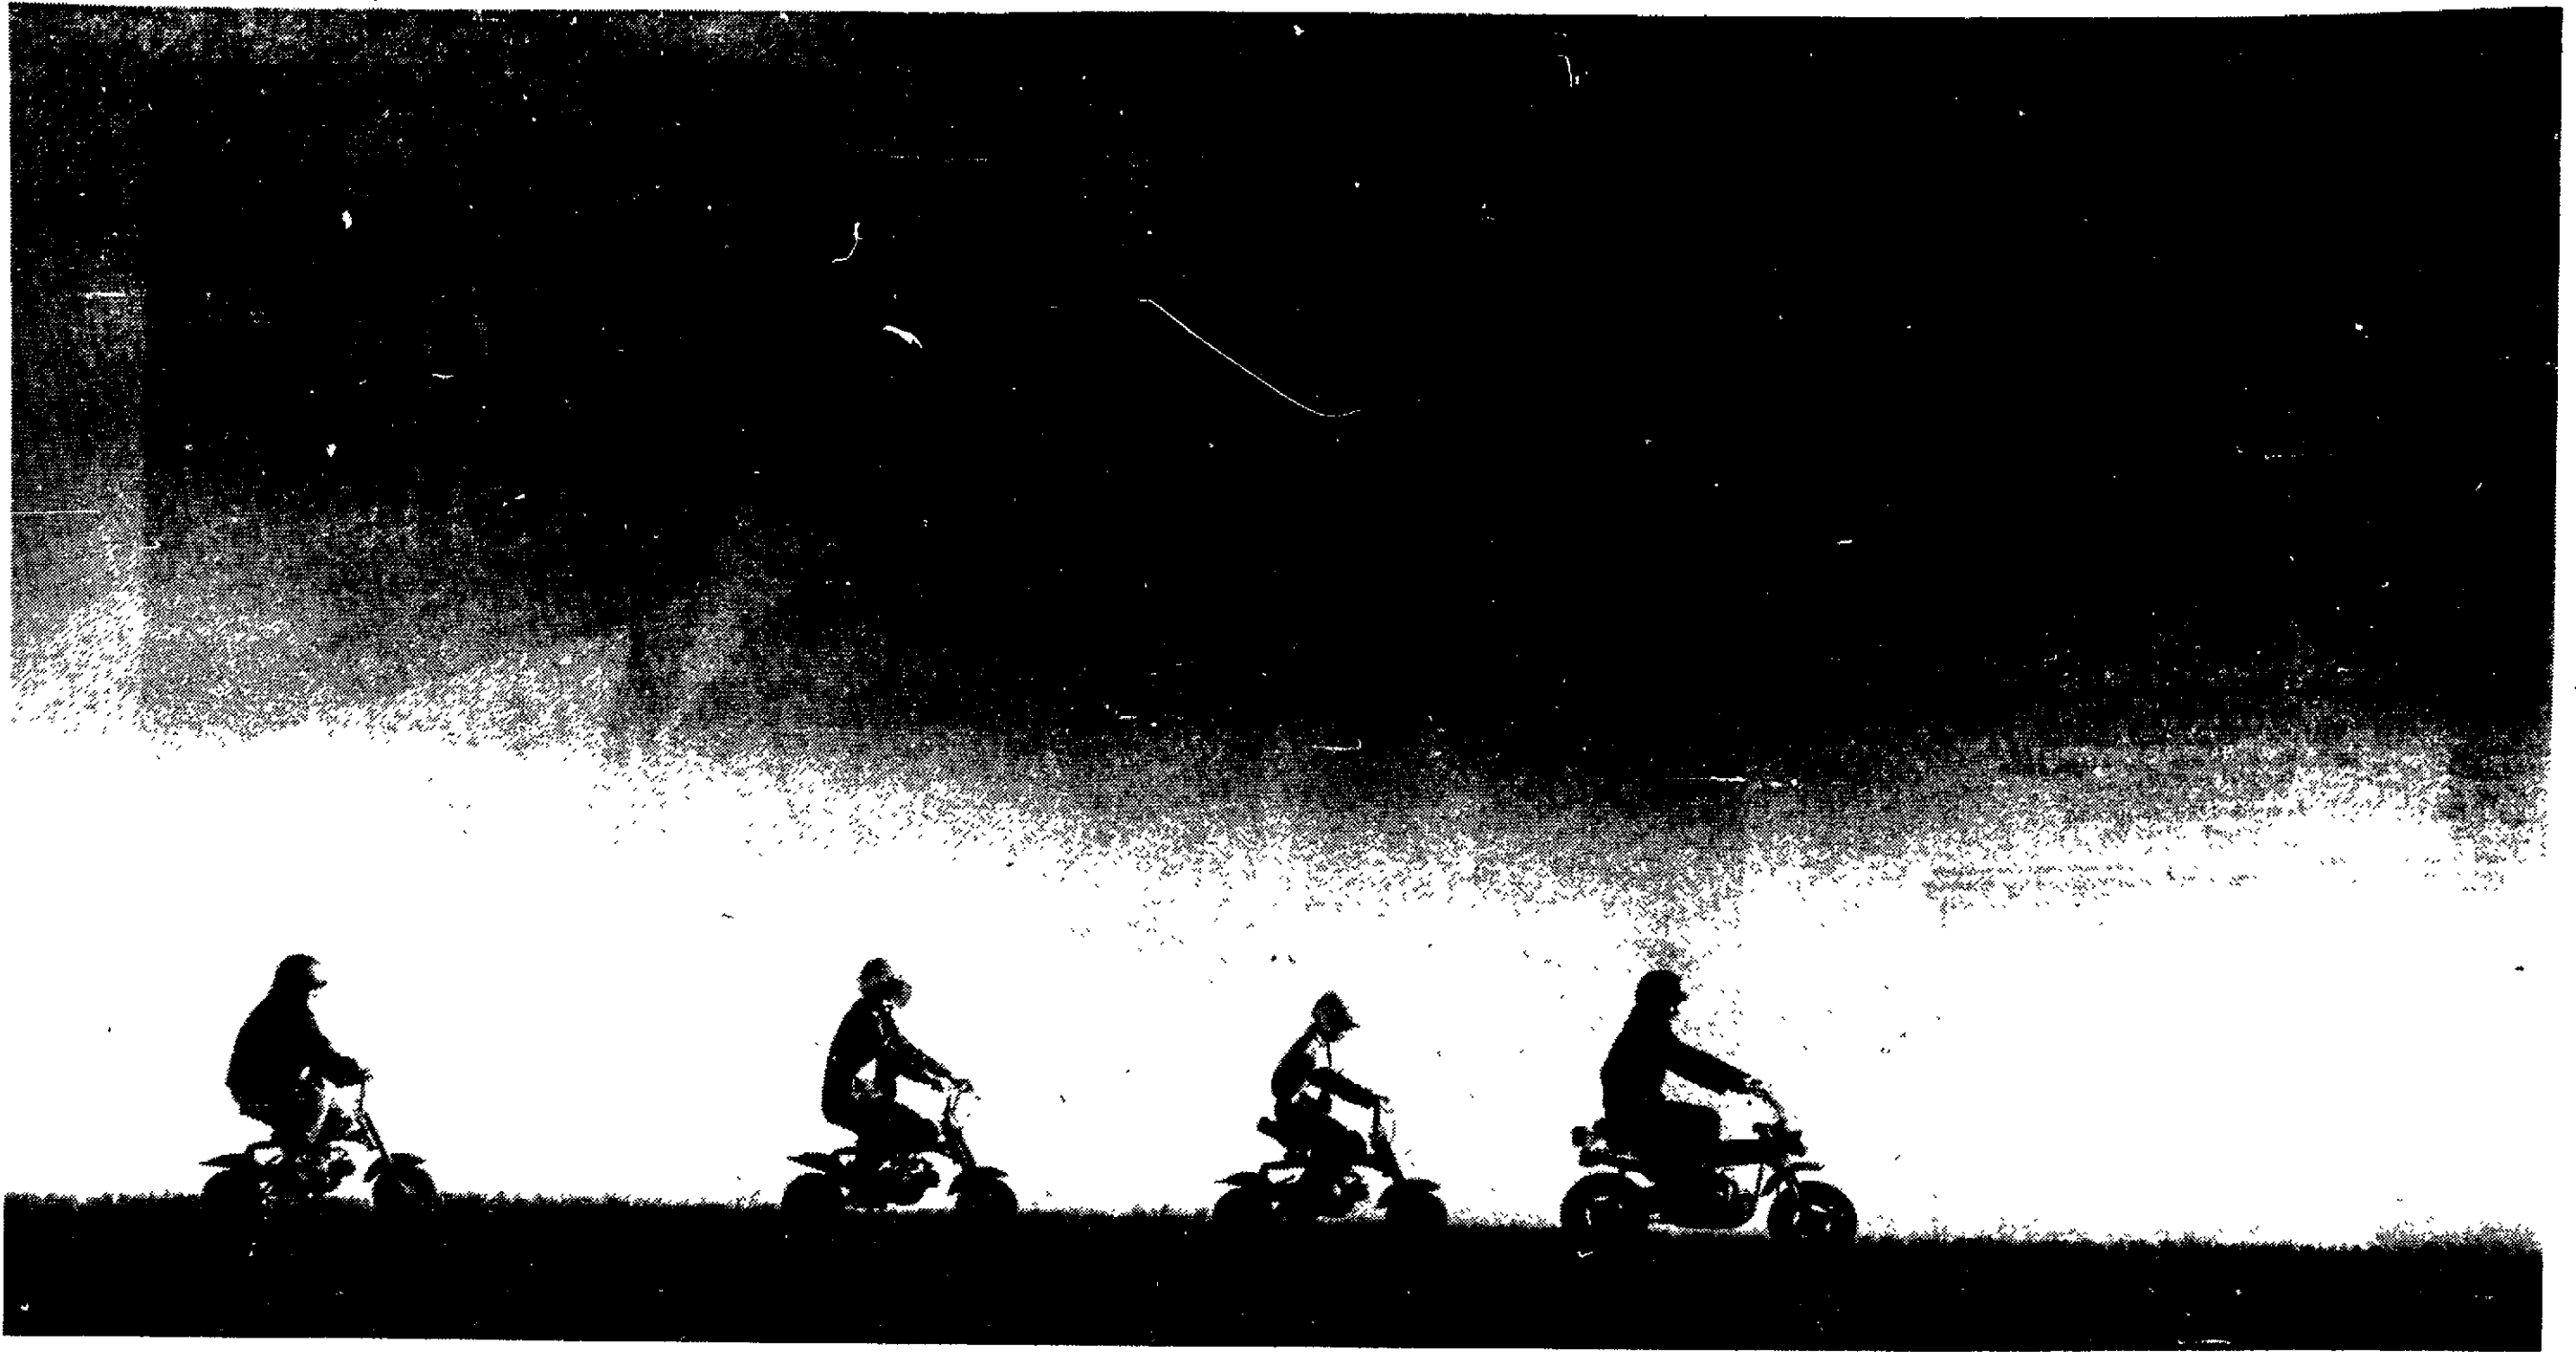

Let us accept the invitation of the bells to "Come and worship," and go to church regularly.

Roaring Out Of Trouble

By NANCY HULVERSHORN
Star Staff Writer

Across deep muddy ruts through puddles, round and round the grass track they roar.

Seven helmeted boys on seven mini-bikes rev up their engines and race across the open field. The cold wind blows, but no one seems to mind.

These youth and their bikes are part of one of the most effective programs in the Youth Services System (YSS) according to James Arnot, YSS director.

It is not a mass program, just 20 kids and 20 bikes. But the Y-Rider program, in operation for more than a year, has been effective in modifying the behavior of the youth involved, according to a study of YSS services.

The program combines mini-bikes, donated by the American Honda Corporation, adult counselors and youth, either in trouble or headed for trouble.

Though the program is open to both sexes, ages 11 to 15, only boys have been referred since it began in February 1972. Referral reasons include delinquent record, need for male influence, poor school attendance and poor school work.

Each boy is responsible for his own bike, which he rides several hours each week. He must also clean and repair the bike. So it's not all just fun, explained Arnot. They have a maintenance factor.

Each of the boys must log carefully the maintenance checks posted on clipboards in an abandoned semi-trailer used for storage and office space.

Each also has a key to the bike he uses, and at first some boys objected to taking the key. I don't want the key. You keep it, and I'll just come and ride," they said.

"But it doesn't work that way. No key, no ride," said Arnot. Part of the program is developing this sense of responsibility.

And this is not a project for one day. It permeates the entire life of the child, according to Arnot.

In order to keep on riding the boys must attend school, maintain passing grades, maintain a good relationship at home and stay out of trouble.

The boys involved in the program had fewer delinquent offenses after they became Y-Riders, according to a study by Behavior Research and Evaluation Corp. of Boulder, Colo.

In fact the decreasing involvement in officially known delinquency was dramatic. The total offense rate after Y-Rider involvement was one-third the prior rate and for serious offenses the decrease was over 50%, according to the study.

"This change is particularly impressive when the magnitude of the initial rates are considered. These are youth who had very substantial involvement in delinquency prior to becoming Y-Riders," the study said.

Other positive behavior changes noted by the study were the boys' confidence in their own abilities, greater respect for property, improved behavior at home and in school, and improved ability to communicate with adults.

One youth explained to the researchers that he was doing better in school because he wanted to stay in the program.

The Y-Rider program is not only successful, but inexpensive. The bikes were donated as part of the National Youth Project Using Minibikes (NYPUM). Northwestern Metal Co. provides the riding field. Whitehead Oil Co. has supplied all the gas and oil, and Jerryco Motors Inc. has worked with the boys on maintenance.

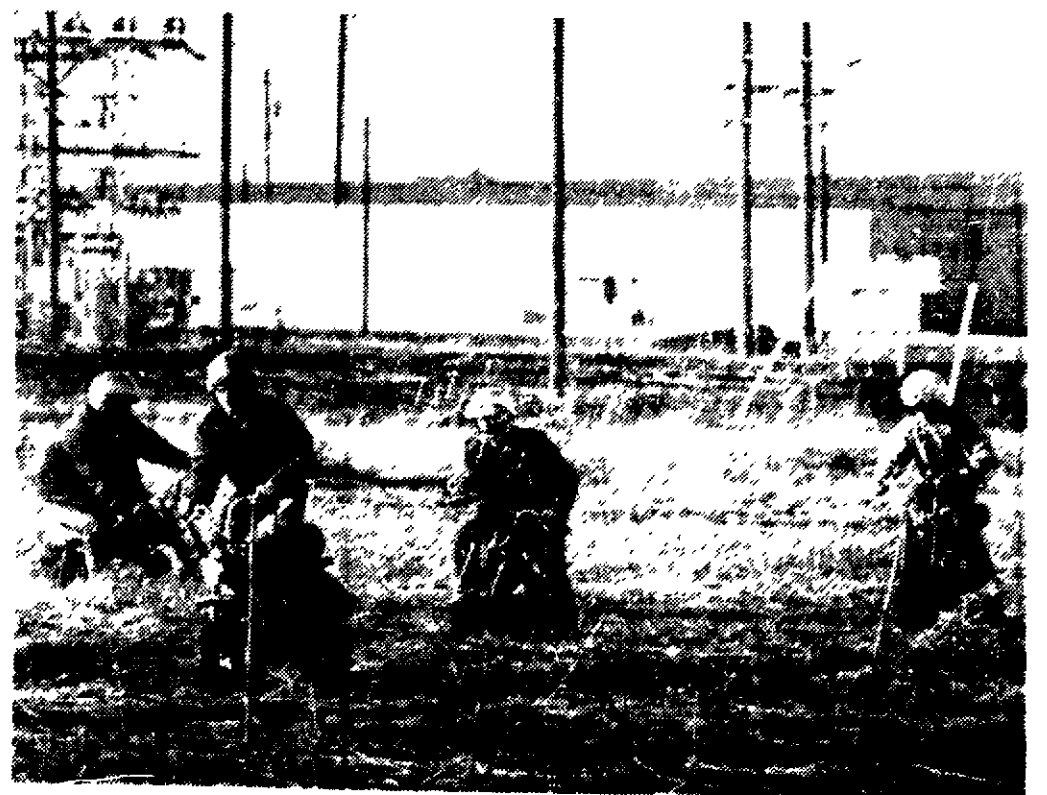

Since the project started, 32 boys have held keys to bikes. Twelve dropped out by their own choice, and five are now on the waiting list, according to Arnot.

For the boys in the program words like motivation and behavior change have little meaning. "I just like to ride," more than one said.

"Yea, I guess it keeps me out of trouble a little," said one freckled-faced boy. "I don't have no place else to go."

Joust Abit Windy, Hooki Lau Highlight Eagles Handicap

Grand Island — Louise Coatney and John Kerber's Joust Abit Windy carries top weight in jockey Raymond Hancock to the post for the Grand Island Eagles Handicap at Fonner Park here Saturday.

The 4-year-old brown gelding by Joust out of Mystic City was given 122 pounds by racing secretary Dean Williams — the identical weight he carried when he won the Jake Grasmick Handicap here earlier this year.

Hooki Lau, a 5-year-old brown gelding by Kentucky Derby winner Kauai King out of Seventh Muse, drew the No. 2 weight at 121 for the 6½ furlong jaunt that offers a $5,000 purse.

Hooki Lau won the Fonner Speed Handicap on March 17 and will be going after this third win in as many outings at Fonner this year along with familiar jockey Wayne Anderson.

Robert Mundt's 6-year-old Aquarius, beaten by both Joust Abit Windy in the Grasmick and Hooki Lau in the Speed, will carry 113 pounds along with Ken Jones in an attempt to even the score against the two speedsters.

Third high-weighted Wild Wink at 117 will carry Don Stauffer in an attempt to upset the certain co-favorites Joust Abit Windy and Hooki Lau.

Wild Wink, a 4-year-old dark-brown gelding by Quicksawink out of Wild Girl won his first start over four furlongs prior to the Baxter Handicap but lost the Handicap to Wally White Eye who will miss the Eagles.

Longtime campaigner on Nebraska tracks, the Champagne Kid, a 3-year-old owned by Fred Underwood will carry John Rettele at 116 pounds and will be going after his first win of the year after running out of the money during the Speed Handicap.

David Pettinger will ride Kota Call at 110 pounds while Walter Orona will be aboard Pepper Man at 113 to complete the seven-horse field.

The Eagles will be the first clash between Joust Abit Windy and Hooki Lau.

During the Grasmick, Joust Abit Windy covered the four furlongs in :47.1-5 over a fast track but was almost two seconds over the track record of :45.4-5 owned by Bold Accent.

Hooki Lau beat Melmitch, holder of the track record for six furlongs at 1:11.2-5, over the same distance in 1:13.4-5 during the Speed Handicap.

Neither horse has run a 6½ furlong race yet this year.

Harvest of Harmony, a 5-year-old chestnut mare owned by Robert Thomsen and trained by O.D. Kemling ran away from the field in the featured seventh Friday to cover the 5½ furlongs in 1:12.1-5.

Don Stauffer guided the daughter of Sir Salonga out of Powdered Rock past Wrong Rhymer and Bin in Bloom to return $9.60, $5.00 and $2.80.

Wrong Rhymer returned $9.00 and $3.40 while Bin in Bloom showed for $3.20.

Jockey Duo Arraigned

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Robert and Michelle Harris — husband and wife jockeys — were arraigned Friday on charges growing out of a federal probe of Finger Lakes Race Track.

Harris, 26, and his 21-year-old wife pleaded innocent to charges of sports bribery and perjury.

The couple was brought into U.S. District Court in connection with alleged fixing of horse races at the track last year. After receiving their plea, Judge Harold P. Burke released the two in their own recognizance.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Gerald J. Houlihan said an indictment handed up by a federal grand jury cited as fixed the ninth race on the program of last Oct. 24.

Houlihan said 10 persons, including trainers, valets, and owners in addition to jockeys, had been named on counts. The Harrises, frequent riders at the Canandaigua track, were the first to be identified publicly.

Hialeah Holocaust Kills Honestous, 33

MIAMI (AP) — A midnight blaze swept through a Hialeah Race Track stable Friday killing 34 thoroughbreds valued at more than a $500,000, including eight-race winner Honestous.

The burned carcass of the 4-year-old filly, which had career earnings of $109,443, was hauled away from the 350-by-50-foot stable which was totally consumed by the blaze.

She was one of 16 horses lost to trainer Eddie Yowell. The other 18 were under the care of trainer Del Carroll. Two handlers were sent to the hospital suffering smoke inhalation.

Although the value of the horses killed was put at a minimum of $500,000, track officials said most of them were young and untried, of especially good breeding, and their future earnings might have been great.

Honestous had finished in the money 21 times, with eight firsts, seven seconds and six thirds. She won the Miss Florida Handicap at Calder last December, beating the brilliant Kittiwake. Honestous ran third behind Graffiti in the Miss Tro-

CASPER LEADS BY ONE

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — John MacLeod, saying he had reached his goal by bringing the basketball program at the University of Oklahoma to "a level of respectability," left the Big Eight school Friday and signed a contract to coach the National Basketball Association's Phoenix Suns.

"Six years ago, when I took over as head coach at Oklahoma, it was my goal to bring the program to a level of respectability. I think we've accomplished that goal," MacLeod told Oklahoma Athletic Director Wade Walker after accepting the Suns' position.

Terms of the contract with Phoenix were not disclosed, but it had been reported earlier in the week that the Suns had offered the 34-year-old bachelor a three-year pact calling for an annual salary of $42,000.

The announcement by Suns General Manager Jerry Colangelo came as a surprise, because as recently as Wednesday night MacLeod said he had decided to remain at Oklahoma and had asked that his name be withdrawn from consideration for the job.

"I meant it when I told the people at home I was staying," MacLeod said Friday. "But in the back of my mind, I couldn't help thinking what a great opportunity the Suns' job represented."

Earlier this week, the Oklahoma Athletic Council voted to raise MacLeod's salary from $18,000 to $23,000.

In his six seasons as head coach of the Sooners, MacLeod compiled a 90-69 record that included trips to the National Invitation Tournament in 1970 and 1971.

"This is a young man's game, and John brings us youth, ability, and enthusiasm," said Colangelo. "I look forward to the future with a great deal of optimism."

MacLeod is the fourth full-time coach of the Suns, although he actually succeeds Colangelo who guided Phoenix most of this season after Bill Van Breda Kolff was fired.

The Suns placed third in the NBA's Pacific Division with a 38-44 record. They did not qualify for the playoffs.

Fuller Wants Winner's Cup

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Attorneys for Peter Fuller argued Friday the state Racing Commission had no authority, under its 1968 rules, to deprive his horse, Dancer's Image, of the winner's cup for the 1968 Kentucky Derby.

Fuller's principal attorney, Arthur Grafton, maintained that the commission, under its rules then in effect, could do no more than deny Dancer's Image the first place purse. That already has been done under a racing commission ruling that was upheld by the state Court of Appeals last year.

The $122,600 first place purse then went to Columet Farm's Forward Pass, who crossed the finish line second.

Fuller now has gone to Franklin Circuit Court in an attempt to force the Racing Commission to give Dancer's Image the gold cup for winning the derby. The winner's purse was denied him by the Racing Commission on the basis that the colt had the banned medication phenylbutazone in his system when he ran the derby.

Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs said Friday he would take a few days to review the record before handing down any decision in the case.

Attorneys John Tarrant and former Gov. Bert T. Combs, representing Churchill Downs, maintained the Racing Commission had the authority to take any action needed to regulate racing even if there were an oversight in its rules.

Grafton said the nominating contract under which Fuller entered Dancer's Image in the Derby said the Racing Commission's rules would apply to the race.

And at that time, he said, the rules said only that any horse found to have had phenylbutazone in his system would not

Nebraska Golfers Earn 3rd

Galveston, Tex. — Nebraska edged Colorado by one stroke for third place in the Galveston Invitational golf tournament Friday despite the efforts of CU's George Kelley.

Kelley took medalist honors for the tourney with a 71-73-71-74-289. Nebraska's Dan Bahensky (75-76-70-77-298) was nine strokes back in sixth while NU's Rick Schultz captured seventh place individually with a 74-75-75-75-299.

Oral Roberts (1,179) did not place a golfer in the top three positions but earned the team title by 11 strokes over Tulsa (1,190). Nebraska and Colorado had 1,205 and 1,206 points, respectively.

Twelve teams participated in the four-day meet at the Galveston Country Club. Par for the 72-hole tournament was 288.

The Huskers return to Lincoln next Thursday and Friday for the Cornhusker Invitational.

The NU results:

Den Bahensky, 75-76-70-77-298, Rick Schultz, 74-75-75-75-299, Steve King, 74-75-75-75-302, Gary Teel, 76-80-75-80-314, Larry Schmidt, 74-81-82-79-316, Bob Meyer, 82-77-79-81-317

Graham In 2nd Place In Greensboro Open

... ELDER FADES BACK

Greensboro, N.C. (AP) — Portly Billy Casper used a deadly, delicate putting touch to fashion a 64 and vault into the second-round lead Friday while Lee Elder drifted back into the pack in the $210,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

Casper held a one-stroke margin over streaking Lou Graham, alone in second at 132. Graham, who has finished just one stroke out of the lead in the last two tour stops, matched Casper's 64 as the day's best round.

Incredible Sam Snead, a 60-year-old wonder who first took this title in 1938, hit all 18 greens, didn't miss a fairway and didn't make a bogey en route to a 67 that left him just two strokes behind Casper at 133.

He was tied with colorful veteran Doug Sanders, who had a 68.

Tied at 134 were Rod Funseth, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Canadian George Knudson and Ken Still.

Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino both improved and were tied at 137 six back. Palmer had a 68 and Trevino blazed home with a 66.

Casper, a two-time U.S. Open champion and former Masters titleholder, scored the last of his 40-plus tour victories late in the fall of 1971. He's been in a slump since then but played strongly for a fourth-place finish last week.

The 41-year-old Casper, who is attempting to fight his way out of the longest victory famine of his career, used only 26 strokes on the wet and soggy greens at the Sedgefield Country Club course as he posted a 36-hole total of 131, 11 under par.

"I can't even remember the last time I shot 64," Casper said after his seven-under-par effort in occasional cold, drizzling rain that dampened the hilly 7,021-yard layout.

While Casper's famed putting stroke returned, Elder's touch on the greens deserted him.

He took a 72—including five missed putts of five feet or less—and fell back to 136, five away from the lead.

"It was just a lousy putting round," said Elder, a 38-year-old who led the first round and must win here if he is to become the first back player to compete in the famed Masters at Augusta, Ga., next week.

Casper, back to a bulky 200 pounds or more, has had four finishes of ninth or better this season and is making one of his strongest bids for a title since taking the 1971 Kaiser Open.

He played the back nine first, birdied twice from about six feet and twice saved par with one-putts after missing the green.

But it was on his homecoming nine, the front side, that Casper made his move. He needed only 12 putts on that side and one-putted the first six holes.

Elder had no luck. "It was a rough day today," he sighed.

He bogeyed the second and third holes, missing a three-foot putt on the second and three-putting the third. He failed on two birdie putts of about five feet, once missed from 18 inches and missed five others in the 10-12 foot range.

"Maybe the next two rounds will be better," he said. "I'm hoping so, anyway."

Wayne's Cage Camp Enlarged

Wayne — Summer basketball camp at Wayne State College, scheduled for June 10-16, will be open to more boys this time; director Ron Jones said Thursday.

The age bracket now includes athletes who will be in seventh and eighth grades next fall — in addition to high school classes that have attended three previous camps.

Jones, head coach of basketball at Wayne State the past three years, has worked with the camp since its first year. Aiding him on the camp staff are his assistant coach, Darryl Lehnus, and Tom Millsap, Norfolk High School basketball coach.

Information on the camp can be obtained by writing to Wayne State.

Martin Tells Tiger GM To Get New Manager

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Billy Martin's status as manager of the Detroit Tigers was shrouded in confusion Friday after the fiery skipper walked out of a meeting with General Manager Jim Campbell.

"I'm done, get yourself a new manager," Martin was quoted as telling Campbell.

Martin and Campbell were meeting with Tiger outfielder Willie Horton to discuss an incident involving Horton's walking out of the ball park without notice during a game with the Boston Red Sox Thursday night in Lakeland.

Martin imposed what Campbell termed a "moderate fine" on the temperamental Tiger outfielder. But Campbell, apparently not satisfied with his handling of the situation, called the pair into his office and increased the amount of the fine.

"I told Billy and Willie they're going to have to act and deal man-to-man in situations like this," Campbell said. "If one of you has a problem with the other, I said, 'talk about it.'"

Campbell said, "Billy jumped out of his chair and shouted, 'I'm done. Get yourself a new manager.'"

Martin left the office, stopped briefly in the clubhouse and returned to the motel where the team is staying. Campbell said he heard nothing more from him and appointed coach Dick Tracewski to handle the team in its exhibition game with the Philadelphia Phillies at Clearwater.

When asked if he thought Martin was serious about resigning, Campbell replied:

"I can't understand Billy Martin. Can you?"

Martin and Horton, at odds in the past, apparently were getting along satisfactorily this spring. Campbell said Horton did not appear upset when Campbell raised the fine. The size of the fine was not revealed.

Horton walked out of the park Thursday night after being pulled from the game after playing six innings.

"If this drags on for a couple of days we'll cross those bridges when we get to them," Campbell said of Martin's vanishing act. "For all I know he (Martin) may be back tomorrow."

Martin, entering his third season with the Tigers, received a new two-year contract calling for $67,500 this year and $72,000 next year. He piloted an aging Tiger team to the American League East title last year.

Detroit finished second under Martin in his first year in 1971 after he was fired at Minnesota following a AL West championship in 1969.

As a player, Martin appeared in New York Yankee, Kansas City, Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and Minnesota uniforms.

Veryzer Paces Tigers Past Philadelphia, 9-5

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie shortstop Tom Veryzer of the Detroit Tigers made a bid to impress the manager Friday — only the manager wasn't there.

Billy Martin's status as manager of the Tigers was in confusion after he stormed from a meeting with Jim Campbell, the team's general manager, saying, "I'm done, get yourself a new manager." The dispute arose when Campbell raised the amount which Martin had lined outfielder Willie Horton for leaving the park during an exhibition baseball game Thursday night.

Siegel Helps All-Star Win

Pittsburgh, Pa. — Fairbury all-starer Bob Siegel scored nine points here Friday night to help the United States All-Stars to a 87-74 triumph over the Pennsylvania All-Stars in the Dapper Dan Classic basketball game.

Siegel converted four of six field goal attempts, three of them from the 25-foot range, and added one of two free throws.

Adrian Dentley of Hattiesville, Md. was named the U.S. All-Stars most valuable player. Dentley scored 25 points.

A crowd of 13,606 attended the event, considered the most prestigious prep all-star game in the country.

Ali, Norton Ready

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Muhammad Ali puts his "people's champion" reputation on the line Saturday against Ken Norton, self-proclaimed "ham and eggs" fighter who knows an upset would keep him in steaks for a long time.

A crowd of about 12,000 is expected for the San Diego Sports Arena card that starts at 4:30 p.m. EST with two preliminary bouts. The Ali-Norton fight starts about 5:40 p.m. and will be televised live by the American Broadcasting Co. to all but the West Coast, where it will be delayed with San Diego blacked out.

Ali professed a high regard for the muscular Norton, who is ranked sixth among the world's heavyweight fighters and who gets "power of suggestion" from a hypnotist and admits, "I have nothing to lose."

Ali, 31, has plenty to lose. The ex-champion rates as the No. 1 contender for George Foreman's heavyweight title. He'll get $210,000 for meeting Norton in the scheduled 12-round. The San Diego fighters collect $50,000.

If Norton, 28, upsets the 5-1 odds against him, he could move to the front for a title fight.

Ali would command a seven-figure purse for meeting Foreman, whose knockout of Joe Frazier deprived Muhammad of a multi-million dollar rematch with Frazier for the title.

Ali has whipped 10 fighters, including such virtual unknowns as Al "Blue" Lewis and such well ranked contenders as Jerry Quarry, since his only defeat came at the hands of Frazier two years ago.

Laver, Smith Earn Wins

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Top-ranked Rod Laver and second-seeded Stan Smith were extended to three sets before winning their quarter-final matches Friday in the second annual $50,000 Holton Tennis Classic.

Smith, of Pasadena, Calif., had the biggest score as he edged seventh-ranked John Alexander, 21, of Australia, 4-6, 6-0, 7-6 with a 7-1 tiebreaker.

Laver, 34, a former Australian now residing at Corona del Mar, Calif., eliminated unseeded Gerald Batick of Great Britain 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

New York AC Refuses To Suspend Griffith

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York State Athletic Commission refused Friday to go along with the French Boxing Federation's suspension of Emile Griffith and asked the French commission to withdraw its suspension of the former world middleweight champion.

Griffith was suspended by the French Boxing Federation March 13 after fighting a 10-round draw in Paris with Max Cohen of France when a sample of Griffith's urine submitted prior to the March 12 bout showed traces of amphetamine.

LSE Golfers Earn Triumph At Beatrice

Beatrice — Lincoln Southeast won the rain-shortened Beatrice Invitational golf tournament here Friday as all four Knights' golfers broke 40.

Rain Delays NU Baseball

Wet weather has forced another delay in an Iowa State-Nebraska baseball series scheduled this weekend in Lincoln, the host school announced Friday.

Originally scheduled for Friday, a doubleheader between the Big Eight teams has been moved up to Sunday. A third game, originally scheduled for Saturday, has been cancelled.

Nebraska Thursday reported the series being delayed one day because of a wet diamond. The new announcement means another one day delay.

Bucks Stop Warrior Bid

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks took advantage of a stumbling Golden State game to hand the Warriors a 110-90 defeat Friday night and took a 1-0 lead in the first round of the Western Conference playoffs in the NBA.

The Bucks were led by a quartet of 20 point or more scorers as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Oscar Robertson each fired in 22 points and Lucius Allen and Bob Dandridge had 20. Rick Barry pumped in 22 to lead the Warriors.

It was a night for defense for the Bucks and a night for mistakes for Golden State. Milwaukee forced the Warriors into 25 turnovers with a backhanded defense that completely threw Golden State off its stride.

Knicks Topple Bullets, 95-83

NEW YORK (AP) — Walt Frazier scored 25 points and triggered a 14-5 run at the start of the fourth quarter to lead the New York Knicks to a 95-83 victory over the Baltimore Bullets Friday in the opener of their first-round National Basketball Association playoff series.

The second game in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference series will be played here Sunday.

Frazier scored 15 points in the first half to keep the Knicks within range of the Bullets, who had leads of 25-19 after one period and 45-43 at the half before the Knicks took charge late in the third period.

The Knicks, who were rusty in the first quarter with only a 37 per cent shooting average, finally made their move with an 8-2 burst at the end of the third period that gave them a 70-65 lead going into the final 12 minutes.

Soviet Refuses Location Of Center

SPACE CENTER. Houston (AP) — The leader of a group of Soviet space experts declined Friday to give the location of the Russian space flight control center, but promised newsmen "full satisfaction" on that question later.

Professor Konstantine Busheyev, head of the Soviet space engineers here to discuss a joint Russian-America space mission, said at a news conference there are several control centers in the Soviet Union.

Busheyev announced at a news conference last week that American specialists would be able to visit and work in the Soviet flight control center during the planned Apollo-Soyuz test project (ASTP), a joint mission scheduled for 1975.

Friday, however, Busheyev firmly refused, despite persistent questioning, to reveal the location of that center. "We are choosing one of two centers which we believe to be the most appropriate," said Busheyev. Asked the geologic location of these two candidate centers, he said through an interpreter: "In our work we have to be armed with patience. I promise you on our next visit, which will be in July, we will be able to give you full satisfaction on this question."

No American has ever visited the Soviet mission control center and the Russians have kept its location a secret.

Busheyev and about 40 other Soviets, including two cosmonauts, have been here for two weeks discussing details of the ASTP space mission.

Glyn S. Lunney, the U.S. technical director for the mission, said the discussions centered on details of general decisions made in earlier meetings. He said preliminary discussions were started on the types of experiments which will be carried into space during the joint mission.

Lunney said the discussions also resulted in firm plans for the transfer between the Russian and American spacecraft of the two countries' spacemen.

He said two American astronauts would first visit the Soviet spacecraft and that the next day the two Soviet crewmen would visit the American spacecraft.

Plans for the mission, he said, call for the Soviet craft, called Soyuz, to be launched from Russia with two men aboard. About seven hours later, an Apollo craft, with three men aboard, will be launched from Cape Kennedy. The second day after launch, he said, the Apollo will rendezvous and dock with the Soyuz, using a new docking system developed by the two countries.

Shortly after docking, two astronauts will transfer into the Soyuz.

Sparse Showing Doesn't Dampen Spirits Of Meat Price Protestors

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Seven persons showed up Friday night at the home of Mrs. Lucy Nickelson, 401 So. 44th, to organize picketing Saturday in protest against high meat prices in Lincoln grocery stores.

But the sparse showing didn't deter the spirit of those attending, and during the meeting a telephone caller pledged six more would participate.

The group will gather at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Safeway store at 1535 No. 27th. Mrs. Nickelson said.

"If enough people show up, I'd like to put two to four in front of a Hinky-Dinky, an IGA and a Jack and Jill," she said, noting that the protest is not aimed specifically at Safeway, at Safeway.

Boycott Week
The picketing kicks off National Boycott Week, which begins Sunday. Asked if she would keep up the protest after the boycott week ends, Mrs.

Nickelson said, "Yes, we've got to eat, you know."

She pointed out the apathy of Lincolinites to high meat prices.

"We hope to get everybody in Lincoln involved and eventually get the prices down," she said. "If everyone would stop eating meat, a week would do it" to affect stores' prices, she said.

Mrs. Nickelson, her daughter-in-law and granddaughter last Saturday staged a lone picket protest in rainy weather at Safeway's 2343 No. 48th store. She said her 2-year-old granddaughter wore a sign that said "Meat prices are higher than me."

No One Disappointed
No one who stopped to talk to her then disappointed, she said, "and that includes farmers."

Mrs. Glory Hamburger said, "Farmers are taking it personally and it's not directed against them."

President Nixon's freeze on store prices "is a little bit late," Mrs. Nickelson said. "It didn't help us consumers at all."

Mrs. Sherry Purdy said, "I haven't bought meat for two weeks. We've been eating fish and cheese."

Mrs. Nickelson said some elderly people on Social Security "are honestly starving to death," and can afford only to buy chicken backs and necks.

Larry Lohmeier, a cafe owner, said he used to buy wholesale chicken at 35 cents a pound and now it's up to 55 cents. Ground beef wholesale prices have risen from 69 cents a pound to as much as 99 cents, he said.

Mrs. Nickelson said she and a group of 10 housewives will travel April 8 to a farm owned by Mrs. Mary Gerdes of Johnson.

"We're going to meet as friends, work with each other and see what's causing the high prices," she said.

Car-Truck Crash Kills Man, Wife

WINSLOW, Neb. (AP)—A Littleton, Colo., couple was killed in a car-truck collision 5 miles north of here on U.S. Highway 77 early Friday afternoon.

The Nebraska State Patrol identified the victims as William Joseph Griffey, 59, the driver of the car, and his wife Debra G. Griffey, 36.

The Patrol said the Griffey auto collided with a truck driven by Leonard Witte of Ewing which was pulling onto the highway from a county road.

Witte was taken to a Fremont hospital with undetermined injuries.

Pope Paul VI Names Cardinal

VATICAN CITY (AP) — When the saints come marching in henceforth, it will be with an assist from Italy's Luigi Cardinal Raimondi.

Pope Paul VI has appointed the 60-year-old former papal envoy to Washington to head the Congregation for the Cause of Saints. The agency handles procedures and investigations in connection with persons proposed for canonization as saints of the Roman Catholic Church.

Cardinal Raimondi succeeds another Italian prelate, Paolo Cardinal Bertoli, who resigned last month.

Papal Audience Is 'Great Day' For Campora

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Juan Peron, ex-strangerman of Argentina, was turned down last November when he sought an audience with Pope Paul VI.

But now the Pope has seen Hector Campora, a Peronist here to confer with his sponsor before taking office as the new president of Argentina. Emerging after nearly an hour in the Pontiff's private study, Campora said: "To me this is a day of great emotion. I went to see the Holy Father as an Argentine citizen and as a future ruler."

Then Campora headed for a meeting with Peron, cooling his heels at his hotel.

Emhart Corp. Says Income Increased 4%

Emhart Corp., owner of the subsidiary Notifier Corp., Lincoln, said in its 1972 annual report that ordinary income rose 4% on an increase of 13% in worldwide sales, an improvement over 1971 performance. Worldwide consolidated income for 1972 was $15,008,000, or $2.92 a share, as compared to 1971 income of $14,845,000, or $2.88 a share. Net income for 1971 included a gain of $366,000, equal to 7 cents a share, accruing from the international realignment of currencies in 1971. Consolidated worldwide sales rose by $30,391,000 to $262,692,000 from 1971 sales of $236,301,000. The upturn in sales and earnings was matched by the marked increase in the rate of incoming orders, up 22%, and the 32% rise in the backlog of unfilled orders to $62,478,000, the report said.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters apostrophes the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
